ARCADIA SCHOOL
IS AMONG 33
ACCUSED BY U.S.
AS DEGREE MILLS

Mid-Western University, Inc., Named by Flemming — Owner Is E. M. B. Ownen, Cited Previously.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12—Mid-Western University, Inc., of Arcadia, Mo., was denounced today as a degree mill by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The school of "natural healing" was one of 33 institutions in nine states listed by Flemming as part of a drive against degree mills. He promised additional lists as his investigation proceeds.

Flemming said the United States commissioner of education now would seek a conference with representatives of the Justice, State and Post Office Departments, the Federal Trade Commission and appropriate non-governmental agencies to see what the Federal Government can do about such institutions. A conference with religious leaders also will be sought, since degree mills often award so-called religious degrees.

Flemming defined a degree mill as an organization that awards a degree without requiring its students to meet traditional standards maintained by reputable institutions.

Undermine Others.
"A degree mill either receives fees from its so-called students on the basis of fraudulent misrepresentations, or it makes it possible for the recipients of its degrees to perpetrate a fraud on the public," Flemming said.

He added that degree mills not only work an injustice on individuals deceived by their claims, but also undermine the reputation of American education at home and abroad.

"We will continue to make known the existence of degree mills whenever we find them operative," he said. "It is in the public interest for us to create a national and international awareness of the inadequacy and utter worthlessness of degree mills."

Flemming's announcement recalled that Mid-Western University had been the subject of an article in the Post-Dispatch last October. The newspaper reported that Mid-Western's president, Edward M. B. (Doc) Ownen, was being investigated by postal inspectors to see whether he was resuming his diploma peddling activities.

Ownen had been paroled from the Ohio penitentiary eight months earlier after serving one year for peddling a medical diploma.

Flemming reported that the "university" awarded nine degrees in 1959. Charges are $50 a month for doctor of naturopathy and doctor of chiropractic, $75 a month for doctor of naturopathy and $100 a month for doctor of homeopathy.

The institution requires residence of four months—one month a year—for the doctor of naturopathy degree, the report said.

A printed announcement of the school says, "approved for foreign students by the immi-

TOTAL IN MARCH

Number Out of Work
Rises to 4,206,000 —
Sharpest Hike for Period in 15 Years.

By THOMAS W. OTTENAD
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12—Unemployment shot up by 275,000 persons last month, the sharpest March rise in 15 years. The number out of work was 4,206,000.

Agricultural employment fell to 4,565,000, the lowest on record. Total employment dropped 285,000 in the month to 64,267,000.

Seymour Wolfbein, deputy assistant Secretary of Labor, said the major factor accounting for last month's changes was bad weather. He made his comments at a press conference today at which the government's monthly report on job conditions was issued.

He pointed out that unusually cold weather and heavy snowfalls in March caused curtailed activity in agriculture, construction and trade.

The impact of the weather can be seen from the fact that the changes that occurred last month were contrary to the usual pattern between February and March. Wolfbein added.

Employment had been expected to rise 450,000 and unemployment to decline by 180,000.

Sharp Rise Possible.
"Agriculture, trade and construction all generally show increases in employment between February and March," Wolfbein noted. "What will happen now is clouded by the impact of last month's severe weather."

"I wouldn't be surprised, however, if we got a pretty sharp rebound in employment this month. The rise may be more than we would expect at this season of the year if the weather continues to be good."

Adjusted for seasonal factors, the unemployment rate amounted to 5.4 per cent of the labor force. It was 4.8 per cent in February.

The number of hours worked weekly by factory employees declined by 12 minutes to 39.6, continuing a slide that has been evident since January.

As a result of the shorter work week, earnings of factory employees dropped 46 per cent over the month to a weekly average of $90.68. The level was $1.44 higher than a year ago.

The government report showed that in the St. Louis labor market, 24,000 persons who were covered by state or federal unemployment insurance were out of work last month. That was an increase of 800 from the previous month. For Missouri the total of "insured" unemployment

PRESIDENT ADDS
VISIT TO KOREA TO SOVIET TOUR

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 12 (AP)—President Eisenhower added today a one-day visit to Korea to the itinerary of his June trip to Russia and Japan.

An announcement, issued here where the President is spending a golfing vacation, said:

"The White House announced today that the President's visit to Japan on the occasion of the Japanese-American centennial would take place from June 19 to June 23. While in Tokyo, the President will have conversations with Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi and his associates."

"The President will also make a brief visit to the Republic of Korea on June 22 in response to a long-standing personal invitation of President Rhee with whom he will have an opportunity to discuss matters of common interest. The President has long desired to re-visit Korea where the United States has contributed so much to the role played by the United Nations in preserving Korean independence."

President Eisenhower played golf yesterday with Arnold Palmer, who won the Masters tourney Sunday.

AREA RADIOACTIVE
IN FALLOUT TEST

DUGWAY, Utah, April 12 (AP)—The Army Chemical Corps will spread radioactive pellets over a six-and-one-half-acre area here to simulate radioactive fallout and test its effect on weapons, equipment, foxholes, shelters and personnel.

The desert site is surrounded by a one-foot thick concrete wall and an earthen embankment tapering from 92 feet thick at the bottom to 23 feet at the top.

Between the wall and the embankment is a 33-foot wide moat. The Army announced its research program today to its scientific advisory panel meeting at the Dugway proving grounds in western Utah. It said only that the test will start soon.

Automatic methods will be used to make radioactive tests on equipment and instrument-wired mannequins. The radioactive dosage will be too great to allow personnel into the area.

Tests can be viewed through lead-glass windows in the outer walls.

JOPLIN, Mo., April 12 (AP)—Attorney General John M. Dalton was given the job of presenting a potted plant to a lucky winner at a city-wide Parent-Teacher Association meeting last night.

The state's chief law enforcement officer, who has directed drives against lotteries, stuck his hand into a jar and drew out the name of the winner.

Suddenly Dalton paused and asked the crowd: "This isn't a lottery, is it?" Nobody was sure. Dalton dropped the subject.

Too Many Pairs of Trousers

NEWBURGH, N. Y., April 12 (UPI)—Truck driver Chester Broadhead of Albany, N. Y., is always leaving some vital papers in his other pants.

When Broadhead was stopped near here Saturday in a routine police check he found he had left his driver's license in another pair of trousers. He posted a $15 bond and returned home by train for the license.

When he returned to Newburgh he found he left his registration papers home in a pair of pants. Broadhead returned to city court with the license and registration yesterday and cleared up the matter but found he left the bond receipt home in another pair of pants.

CASTRO REJECTS
PLEA TO RETURN

State Department Turns Down Three Protests by Cuba on Other Matters.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Fidel Castro's Cuban government has rejected a United States plea to return two American flyers who were shot down in Cuba after a flight from Florida.

The State Department, disclosing this yesterday, announced also its own rejection of three Cuban protests on other matters.

At the time the two flyers were arrested, Cuba said they were trying to spirit out of the country a former agent of dictator Fulgencio Batista, who was deposed by Castro's revolution.

United States authorities later said, however, that they obtained a statement from one of the American flyers, William J. Schergales, that Castro's regime arranged the flight to embarrass the United States.

Cuba's refusal to return the men heightened Washington suspicion on this score. Cuba said Schergales and Howard Rundquist are subject to Cuban court action for a crime against Cuba.

The United States had wanted to investigate Schergales and Rundquist for possible violation of American laws in making their secret flight.

One Note to Cuba.

One of three United States notes delivered to Cuba yesterday rejected a Cuban protest over a new United States clampdown on sale of helicopters to Cuba.

The United States reply said a policy was begun two years ago of closely studying all Caribbean arms requests. It said arms shipments had been denied to Batista before Castro.

"It was the profound hope of the United States that with the establishment of the present government of Cuba, peace and tranquility would be restored to the Caribbean area," the note

MAJOR SATELLITE FIRING COSTS AT LEAST $10,000,000

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Each major satellite launching by the United States costs between $10,000,000 and $14,000,000. When the Saturn super booster comes into use several years from now, the price will go up to about $20,000,000.

Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, deputy administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, gave the figures to a House appropriations subcommittee recently. His testimony was released today. Dryden said NASA's bill for launching a three-stage Thor-Able rocket—the kind that put the recent Pioneer V and Tiros satellites into orbit—runs about $14,000,000.

Dryden estimated the total research and development program for the Saturn booster at $886,000,000. After that, the operational vehicles will run about $20,000,000 each, he said.

ALLIED FOREIGN
TALKS TO DRAFT
SUMMIT GOALS

U.S., French and British Officials Meet in Air of Mild Optimism — Others to Join Them Later.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Allied foreign ministers began a round of pre-summit talks today with a reminder that East-West leaders cannot hope to settle their bitter disputes at a single conference.

"The road to peace is a long and hard one and no one can now say when the goal will be reached," the State Department said in publishing a book of background documents.

The series of meetings opened this afternoon with a strategy session bringing together Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

The three foreign ministers, meeting in an atmosphere of mild optimism, were reported confident they could draft combined proposals which their government chiefs will lay before Soviet Premier Khrushchev at next month's Paris summit meeting.

Others Coming Later.

West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano will join them tomorrow, and the Italian and Canadian foreign ministers will be brought into the disarmament phase of their discussion later.

In a move to curb excessive hope, the State Department published a bulky document recalling how the 1955 summit meeting at Geneva failed to break the East-West deadlock. The 478-page book of documents also recalled the tangle of proposals and counterproposals that led to the decision to have the Big Four leaders try again in Paris May 16.

With an eye on this second conference, the State Department said in a summary: "It would be unrealistic to expect that these grave issues can be resolved at one heads-of-government conference."

Pledges Perseverance.

Despite the obstacles, however, it pledged the United States would persevere in its drive to find area of agreement with the Communist bloc. It foresaw "an important tangible gain" toward such a goal in the closer personal contacts established by President Eisenhower and Khrushchev in their Camp David talks last September. The summary said:

"Much more than at their previous meeting at the Geneva summit conference of 1955, the two men had an opportunity for a frank exchange of views on major world issues and a chance to evaluate each other's way of thinking."

None of the documents published.

2000-MILE-WIDE
CYCLONIC CLOUD
ON TIROS FILMS

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The largest sweep of weather ever observed by man—a 2000-mile-wide cyclonic cloud movement across the central Pacific—showed up on Tiros I films flown here from Hawaii yesterday.

The whirlpool of cloud formations covered much of the ocean area between Hawaii and the equator.

William Stroud, Tiros project manager for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told reporters he was using the meteorological term for a large circulatory movement, and was not talking of the more localized hurricane and tornado movements. There was no relationship, either, between this sighting and the more recent location, in films taken Sunday, of a hurricane off Australia.

Stroud said the scale of the Pacific cyclone, which had a radius of at least 1000 miles, was much larger than weather experts had supposed existed.

U.S. COINS REFUSED
IN SOME TORONTO
STORES, CAFES

TORONTO, April 12 (AP)—United States coins were declared worthless in some Toronto stores and restaurants yesterday. Merchants posted notices that the coins are no longer being accepted.

Canadian banks announced Friday that they would charge an additional 2 per cent on deposits of United States coins totaling more than $1. The discount would be in addition to the regular discount of about 3½ cents on the paper dollar.

Most stores were charging two cents on a United States quarter and one cent on dimes and nickels yesterday. The Toronto Transit commission posted notices on fare boxes of streetcars, buses and subway entrances advising that American coins were no longer acceptable.

Coin machines were reported to be taking the brunt of the losses. Vendors said few machines are equipped to distinguish between United States and Canadian coins.

GOES TO JAIL FOR CLIENT

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—Attorney Joseph C. Thomson went to civil jail for contempt last Friday because he thought his client, Thomas H. Ochse, was getting a raw deal in an estate matter.

Ochse was ordered in State Supreme Court to surrender a certificate for one third interest in a New Rochelle apartment house. Thomson, who held the certificate in escrow, refused to surrender it. He was sent to civil jail until he does.

Stevenson Dines at Monticello
In Almost Jeffersonian Style

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 12 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson dined in Monticello, the beloved home of Thomas Jefferson, last night. The last similar dinner, according to the curator, probably took place in 1824. That was when Jefferson held a dinner for General Lafayette on one of Lafayette's return visits to America.

For years now Monticello has been a national shrine, closed daily at 5 p.m. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1952 and 1956, is here to make a founder's day speech tonight at the University of Virginia.

Last night Stevenson was joined by 21 other guests, some of them students at the university, and they ate in a manner as like Jefferson's as could be arranged in this complicated time.

The place was lit by candles and the food was brought in from the outside by a caterer. Unlike in the old days, when slaves served the meals, the food was passed from hand to hand. Course followed course, each with its own wine.

At one point Thomas J. Miskie, Charlottesville mayor, explained that Jefferson had so many visitors drop in to stay for a considerable length of time that he went broke playing host to them.

OLD ORDINANCE TO BE ENFORCED BY BROSTRON ON ADVICE OF CITY

Supreme Court Rules
Funds Can Be Used for Traffic Control, Including Off-Street Parking Facilities.

A new parking meter bill will be submitted to the Board of Aldermen to replace a law declared invalid yesterday by the Missouri Supreme Court, the city counselor's office announced today.

Meanwhile, Police Chief Curtis Brostron said police would continue to ticket automobiles parked in violation of the existing ordinance.

Brostron said City Counselor Thomas J. Neenan had advised the police department to continue enforcing the existing law. Neenan has received a copy of the decision and is studying it.

Ruling on Use of Money.

Although the court invalidated the parking meter ordinance, it ruled the city is empowered to use money in the parking meter fund for traffic control and regulation, including off-street parking facilities. This decision relaxed a more restrictive ruling made earlier by the St. Louis circuit court.

Circuit Judge Franklin Reagan had held that use of parking meter receipts for traffic regulation, general revenue purposes or for establishment of off-street parking facilities was illegal.

Judge Reagan, after reviewing the state statute which authorized the city to install parking meters, had concluded: "Parking meter fees may be used only for the installation, repair, maintenance, replacement or removal of parking meters; the administration, collection and accounting of such fees; the enforcement of such fees; the enforcement of the parking meter ordinance, including necessary expense for legal services and police services."

Neenan and Associate City Counselor John J. Shanahan, who tried the case, said the narrow limitation placed on use of the funds was of greater concern to the city than the ruling that the parking meter ordinance was invalid.

Called Legislative Function.

Both Judge Reagan and the Supreme Court held that the present law is invalid because it authorizes the Parking Meter Commission to set parking fees and establish zones in which various rates are charged. This was held to be a legislative function which could not be legally delegated to the commission.

Shanahan said the defect could be cured merely by enactment of an ordinance specifically setting out the fees and zones.

George P. Marsh, president of the Automobile Club of Missouri, which was a plaintiff in the suit challenging the validity of the ordinance, said today the club was "extremely pleased" with the Supreme Court's ruling.

"The decision accomplishes exactly what was sought when the suit was filed," he said. "That is, to insure that parking meter funds be spent for the benefit of street users, such as on parking meters, on traffic control and regulation, and for off-street parking."

Marsh said the club had not opposed parking meter funds being used for such purposes, adding:

"But suit was filed upon passage of an ordinance to double the parking meter fees and to transfer parking meter funds to general revenue for budget-balancing purposes not related to traffic control and regulations."

Funds Can't Be Diverted.

He said the court's ruling apparently precludes the Board of Aldermen from diverting the funds for general uses, since the court's opinion specifically states the traffic uses to which the fees may be applied.

The aldermen raised parking meter rates in the central and other heavily-traveled business areas from 30 cents an hour to 5 cents for 30 minutes and fines for violations went up from $1 to $2. In neighborhood shopping areas there are meters providing for parking for 12 minutes for one cent, up to a maximum of two hours for 10 cents.

SOUTH AFRICA BEGINS DRIVE TO BRING IN WHITE IMMIGRANTS

Opposition Party Chief Graaff Urges Investigation Into Basic Causes of African Discontent.

JOHANNESBURG, April 12 (AP)—The South African government, alert to the magnitude of its race problem, announced today it is embarking on a large scale program to bring in white immigrants.

Interior Minister J. F. Naude told Parliament the government now considers immigration "of the utmost importance for the union."

The Nationalist government has been under fire for years from the opposition for failing to promote immigration and improve the balance of 3,000,000 whites against 10,000,000 blacks. Naude denied that the Nationalists have impeded immigration by English-speaking people because of the fear they would vote against the Nationalist government, run by men of Dutch descent.

Inquiry Urged. A spokesman for the opposition to the government of the wounded prime minister, Hendrik F. Verwoerd, called for an inquiry into the basic causes of African discontent.

Sir de Villiers Graaff, the United party leader, said he and his followers intend to bring pressure on the government for an investigation of the reasons for Negro unrest once the present state of emergency is ended.

Graaff spoke at a press conference in Capetown. Police, meanwhile, made new raids looking for subversive elements. The cabinet made clear there will be no easing of South Africa's strict segregation policies during the convalescence of Verwoerd.

Graaff said the proposed inquiry would provide an opportunity for criticism of the government's handling of the present situation.

Both the United party and Verwoerd's dominant National party are for continued white supremacy in South Africa—in which 10,000,000 Negroes outnumber the whites more than three to one—but differ as to methods. The United party has only 41 of the 163 seats in the lower house of Parliament.

White Representatives. Graaff pointed out his party favors more representation for non-whites in Parliament though it wants only white representatives seated for them. Negroes and coloreds (mulattoes) currently are represented by seven white men.

Graaff said the opposition voted with the government in passing the emergency regulations, which provided a modified form of martial law, because the government had made a case for declaration of an emergency.

Three armored cars backed a force of 100 police, white and Negro, in raids today on African settlements in southwest Johannesburg. These were part of a campaign to root out alleged African gangster elements and to seize contraband weapons.

Newspapers were filled with government warnings that a apartheid policies will be strictly maintained while Verwoerd, shot twice in the head by a white farmer Saturday, is on the sidelines.

Lands Minister Paul Sauer, heading the government in Verwoerd's absence, asserted that authorities were determined to stamp out Negro "inciters and intimidators" the government blames for continuing racial strife.

Similar statements were issued by Foreign Minister Eric Louw and Justice Minister Francois Erasmus.

The police announced their raids to seek out suspected subversives would continue.

There were also numerous warnings to foreign correspondents, some of whom were accused of sending exaggerated reports of the National party government's police actions against the Negroes.

Order to Press. Police ordered the press to stop printing the name of David Pratt, who shot Verwoerd.

Pratt is being held under the emergency regulations now in effect, which permit the government to file charges against him at its convenience. It had been thought he would be arraigned yesterday, but a police spokesman said he "will appear in court at some future date."

"Some papers speculated that Pratt will be charged with high treason, punishable by death. A medical bulletin said there had been a distinct improvement in Verwoerd's condition following a satisfactory night."

"There has been gradual relief in the inevitable pain and discomfort, and the Prime Minister's progress remains satisfactory," the announcement said.

Police Sergeant Defends Shooting of Negro Demonstrators. VEREENING, South Africa, April 12 (AP)—A judicial commissioner inquiring into the Sharpeville riot, in which 67 Negro demonstrators were killed and 186 wounded by police fire March 21, was told today the relatively small police detail had no alternative but to shoot.

Sgt. J. L. Grobler, who commanded the Sharpeville police station, was the first witness before the commissioner, Justice P. L. Wessels. He gave this account:

The mass demonstration was preceded that same morning by two smaller disturbances. Police had dispersed large mobs, once by a baton charge and once by opening fire.

The crowd which then surrounded the police station numbered about 15,000. There were 100 to 150 policemen.

The Negroes were brandishing sticks and iron bars, shouting and shaking their fists.

A show of force by jet planes flying low overhead failed to disperse them. Then three officers arrived with five armored cars and reinforcements. Some Negroes jumped over the fence into the police post compound.

When Col. A. T. Spengler of the security police arrested two leaders inside the fence there was a scuffle and the crowd threw stones. The crowd seemed intent on advancing.

A police captain tried to address the crowd over a loudspeaker, but the witness could not hear his words.

Police used no tear gas as the wind blew in the wrong direction. They had four Sten guns in addition to a number of .303 rifles and service revolvers.

Grobler heard no order to fire. If there was an order to fire, he said, there was too much noise to hear it. There were no warning shots fired into the ground or the air. The firing lasted about 20 seconds.

Some of the crowd tried to get away, but others still seemed momentarily to advance. Then all tried to pull out. Firing stopped on an order from a police lieutenant colonel, G. D. Pienaar.

SAYS MEDICAL SOCIETIES FAVOR DRUG MAKERS

Iowa Medical School Staff Member Urges Critical Appraisal of Medicines.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—A row flared today between Senators at a public hearing marked by testimony that some big medical societies are beholden and subservient to free spending drug manufacturers.

The charge against the medical societies came from Dr. William Bean of the State University of Iowa Medical School staff, in testimony before the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly subcommittee.

Republican and Democratic members of the committee took turns leveling bitter charges at each other before Bean testified.

The committee members wrangled for nearly two hours before Bean could get in a word, but he didn't seem to mind.

"This looks like fun," he told the Senators when they tried to apologize.

Investigating Industry. The subcommittee is investigating alleged profiteering and monopolistic practices in the drug manufacturing industry, and has had many partisan rows.

Senators Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Senate Republican leader, and Roman L. Hruska (Rep.), Nebraska, led off this latest round with accusations that the Democrats are conducting an unfair "inquisition" that could cause undeserved and irreparable damage to the drug industry.

Committee Chairman Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, retorted coldly that "unless it is a whitewash," nothing in the inquiry would please Dirksen and Hruska.

"As long as I'm chairman, there is not going to be any whitewash," Kefauver said.

Dirksen served notice that he will not let the committee meet hereafter while the Senate is in session. The Senate is in recess until Thursday and Dirksen could not block a session before then.

Senate rules require unanimous consent before most of its committees can meet while the Senate is in session.

Says Criticism Is Stifled. Bean, in written testimony filed with the committee, said some medical societies are so beholden to some drug manufacturers that they won't listen to criticism of the firms' products.

He described as dangerous and deplorable some of the medicines now being placed on the market. He said they should be discussed critically at doctors' meetings.

He said some companies are trying to make a quick financial bill with "the quick pill."

Dr. Bean said he knew of cases where there had been extensive laboratory tests on drugs but only "a minimum of clinical trial" before they were sold to the public at a big profit. He used the phrase "the quick pill" in referring to the marketing of medicines.

He charged that some medical journals had refused to publish articles criticizing particular drugs, lest advertising suffer.

In addition, he said, various drug companies pay for "lavish" dinners and cocktail parties at medical conventions and hearings.

"These seem to be free," he said. "Instead, they are supported by increasing the cost which our patients pay for drugs."

FAIRLY HEAVY ILLINOIS VOTE IN HOT CONTESTS

Record Turnout Expected in St. Clair County Over Democratic Fight.

CHICAGO, April 12 (AP)—Illinois voters were going to the polls in fairly heavy numbers today, attracted by vigorous contests in both parties for primary election nominations.

In heavily populated St. Clair county, a fight between two Democratic factions was expected to produce a record primary turnout of about 70,000 out of a total registration of 139,787. Only 32,032 votes were cast in St. Clair county in the 1958 primary.

Voting ranging from "fairly heavy" to "heavier than usual" was reported at mid-day in Springfield, Rock Island and Rockford.

However, light voting was reported in Aurora, Galesburg, Dixon and in several southern Illinois towns.

For the state as a whole, about 2,000,000 of the 5,000,000 registered voters were expected to go to the polls, which are open from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Scrappy state contests for the Republican nomination of an opponent to United States Senator Paul H. Douglas and for Gov. William G. Stratton's statehouse office stimulated both organization and independent voters in both parties.

The star national personality was Vice President Richard M. Nixon, running unopposed in the Republican presidential preference primary. There was no Democratic popularity test. Illinois preference votes are not binding on delegates to the national party conventions.

National Republican leaders watched to see how heavy an endorsement Nixon's name would draw.

Highlighting today's primaries were a three-way contest for the Democratic Governor nomination, a challenger in the lists against Stratton's third term bid, and a six-way race for the Republican United States Senate nomination.

Otto Kerner, recent Cook county judge who was slated by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's Democratic machine for the governor nomination, faced Stephen A. Mitchell, former Democratic national chairman, and State Treasurer Joseph D. Lohman. The independents waged a sharp anti-bossism campaign.

State Senator Hayes Robertson of suburban Flossmoor, has put substantial amounts of money and stumping into his fight against Stratton, who is seeking an unprecedented third consecutive four-year term.

Kennedy Finds Clear Evidence Of Anti-Catholic Sentiment

Backers Concede It May Be Decisive Factor in West Virginia—He Also Encounters Move to Stop Him.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va., April 12—Senator John F. Kennedy found West Virginia's political trails rough and treacherous today.

The Massachusetts Senator, front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, was forced to fight back on these two main fronts:

1. As a Roman Catholic, he was confronted with clear evidence that anti-Catholic sentiment remains politically strong in a state that is 95 per cent non-Catholic.

2. He encountered an openly avowed "stop Kennedy" movement. The theory of this campaign, led by Senator Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, is that all those who favor any Democratic nominee other than Kennedy should vote in the May 10 primary for Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, whose chances of nomination are slight whether he wins or loses in the West Virginia contest.

In a day of campaigning from Parkersburg in the north to Beckley in the south, Kennedy found the religious issue everywhere yesterday. Even close supporters conceded that it well may be the decisive factor in this state. Religious questions were raised in question-and-answer periods whether held in colleges or on street corners.

He got applause when he defended the right of a Catholic to be President, and declared that his religious beliefs were personal and private, "not one of the great issues of this campaign."

On the "stop Kennedy" issue, he chided his rivals other than Humphrey for declining to meet him in West Virginia, Nebraska, Indiana or Maryland primaries.

He drew big and enthusiastic crowds everywhere, but the undertone of anti-Catholic feeling never was absent.

Senator Kennedy once was confident of his ability to beat Humphrey decisively in West Virginia on the basis of a private poll that showed him 70 to 30 per cent over Humphrey. But yesterday he agreed that that poll, made last December, no longer could be considered up-to-date. He told his backers at a private luncheon that they would have to fight hard if they were to win.

He said that Humphrey was "being used" in West Virginia by forces that did not favor the Minnesota but instead were working for the nomination of others. Senator Robert Byrd is an avowed supporter of Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the majority leader, who has not avowed his own presidential candidacy.

ANTI-RHEE RIOTS CONTINUE; 10,000 GATHER IN MOB

Korean Police Fire Over Demonstrators' Heads in Effort to Stave Them Off.

SEOUL, April 12 (AP)—Police fired into the air tonight at Masan to stave off 10,000 demonstrators against President Syngman Rhee's government. Troops also clashed with a crowd in Taegu. It was the second straight day of anti-government rioting in South Korea.

Shouting slogans, the Masan crowd threatened to break into the police station for the second consecutive night. Police fired about 1000 rounds over their heads. The crowd retreated a short distance.

A reinforcement of more than 400 armed policemen guarded the station, one of a dozen buildings wrecked by demonstrators Monday night.

One student was killed, several injured and 20 police wounded in the riot that broke out late Monday night in the port city of Masan, 220 miles south of Seoul.

Demonstrators, including groups of high school students, marched up and down the streets of Masan today chanting slogans denouncing the Rhee government. Spectators cheered. Some demonstrators threw stones at the police. The high school students went home.

Then a new crowd gathered in front of the police station, defying a 7 p.m. curfew. The crowd soon swelled to 10,000. Many carried placards.

"Don't resort to authoritarian measures," "Arrest Violence Employing Policemen," and "Don't Suppress Freedom Throughout the Country" read the placards.

About 30 Democrats were arrested in Taegu after armed police battled for about an hour with 60 members of that opposition party trying to whip up a demonstration.

CITIES TEMPTED, BUT HESITATE TO TRY PEDESTRIAN SHOPPING MALLS

Many Studying Plans of Type Recommended for St. Louis—Kalamazoo's Success—Tryouts Elsewhere.

By HARRY WILENSKY
of the Post-Dispatch Staff

Nearly 100 cities are studying proposals for pedestrian malls of the type recommended for downtown St. Louis.

All are interested in the idea, but there is general hesitation, a survey showed today, because closing downtown streets to automobiles is such a drastic move. Most cities would like to see this thoroughly tested first—preferably by someone else.

In its master plan revealed Saturday for revitalizing downtown St. Louis, the City Planning Commission proposed that the Olive-to-Washington sections of Sixth, Eighth and Tenth streets be reserved for pedestrians, and that Olive street likewise be converted into a mall from Broadway to Eleventh, except for north-south crossings at Seventh and Ninth.

Similar mall proposals have been made for Fort Worth, Kansas City, Milwaukee, St. Paul, Cincinnati, Buffalo, Toledo, Miami, Joplin, Mo., Rochester, N.Y., and many other cities.

The major shopping malls now in operation are all in Europe. They are to be found in Rotterdam, Stockholm, Verona, Cologne, Essen and Stevenage, England.

Kalamazoo's Experience. In the United States, a number of smaller towns have experimented with the idea of closing off streets for a short time. Only one American city—Kalamazoo, Mich.—has established a permanent mall.

Last summer, Kalamazoo, which has a population of about 85,000, ripped out asphalt paving and curbs along two blocks of Burdick street, main north-south artery through the shopping district. The replanted area was raised to sidewalk level, and a mall was created with walkways of colored concrete blocks, trees, flower beds, fountains, play areas for children, benches for tired shoppers and a revolving stage for special events.

The mall cost $65,000, merchants contributing $30,000. There are 45 retail stores on the mall, and their sales during the first six months increased 10 to 15 per cent. A poll showed that 42 of the merchants were enthusiastic about the mall. Many of the stores have made improvements, and property values in the area have gone up. Kalamazoo is so pleased with the success of the mall it is talking about speeding up the city's 20-year plan to develop a business district entirely free of automobiles.

105-Day Trial in Toledo. In Toledo, an experiment with two downtown malls last year was less successful. Four blocks of two parallel streets were sealed off and converted into landscaped walkways. Statues from the Toledo Art Museum were displayed, and soft music was piped in.

This was to have been a 45-day experiment, but it attracted such widespread interest it was continued for 105 days. Inquiries poured in from several hundred cities, and 70 out-of-town delegations came to inspect the setup. Toledo dismantled its temporary malls last November. Since then it has been debating whether to establish a permanent mall at a cost of $430,000. City Manager Russell Rink favors the move, believing that a mall development combined with new parking facilities might be the salvation of the downtown area.

Not all Toledo citizens share his enthusiasm, however. Phillip J. Zeller Jr., executive secretary of Downtown Toledo Associates, said business men are divided over the matter, there having been no definite evidence that the temporary malls helped retail business.

have been conducted in a number of small towns, including Grand Haven, Mich.; Springfield, Ore.; Rome, Ga.; Lubbock and Waco, Tex.; Oxnard, Calif.; Waukegan, Ill., and Hempstead, Long Island.

St. Louis gave shoppers a fleeting idea of what a mall might be by closing off the 700 block of St. Charles street for one day last August. Other large cities in this country have dipped their toes into the water, but none has taken the plunge.

The National Retail Merchants' Association is cautious on the subject of malls. J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president, says:

"During 1959, there was great excitement in retailing over the mall approach to downtown renewal, but only one store in 10 in a community with an organized renewal program indicated that the community has tried this approach. Of these, two-thirds felt that the promotion resulted in only 'so-so' public reaction."

"The retailers' appraisal of other types of renewal work was much more encouraging."

A downtown mall of itself does not assure a teeming "pedestrian paradise" or assure recapture of business lost to the suburbs. After an initial success based on novelty, it can run into trouble if not soundly conceived.

Says Shoppers Won't Walk. William G. Barr, executive director of the National Parking Association, says the feverish interest in malls carries this danger:

"Cities get carried away with pie-in-the-sky plans and just do nothing when they find out how much execution would cost. They let things get worse and worse without doing the inexpensive things that would help."

Barr is skeptical about mall plans calling for parking areas around the business district. "The trouble is that people will not walk," he insisted. "In cities of 78,000 population, for instance, shoppers won't walk more than two blocks to get to a store. In larger cities they'll walk perhaps four blocks."

One of the major critics of current mall proposals is Victor Gruen, the architect whose proposal for redevelopment of downtown Fort Worth started the furor. Noting that there has been a flood of mall projects, with over 50 listed as experimental, he said:

"The trouble with these mall experiments is that they are not based on planning considerations. They are the direct outcome of the desire to do quickly and cheaply something spectacular and to rely on patent medicines rather than a thorough treatment. They are spatially limited, poorly executed promotions."

"The creation of pedestrian areas downtown can be successful only if it is accomplished as an integral part of a carefully scheduled over-all plan."

Sound Approach Claimed. The St. Louis Plan Commission believes that its mall proposals are based upon a program that is comprehensive and sound. Its master plan calls for establishment of malls only after development of a rapid transit system, completion of an expressway loop around the busi-

SCHOOL GROUP SAYS SPRINKLER LAW IS UNFAIR

Aldermen Are Told Requirement Is Costly and Entirely Unreasonable.

Requiring sprinklers throughout schools not entirely of fire resistive construction is "entirely unreasonable" and is "not supported by competent authority," a committee of the Board of Aldermen was told yesterday.

Compliance with the requirement, a part of St. Louis's new fire safety ordinance, will cause considerable unnecessary expense, a committee of school representatives said in proposing amendments to the ordinance.

The group, representing public, Catholic and Lutheran schools, as well as Washington and St. Louis universities, presented its views in a detailed statement at a hearing conducted by the aldermen's public safety committee.

The committee, headed by Alfred I. Harris (Dem.), Twenty-second Ward, took the recommendations under advisement.

Necessary in Some. In commenting on the section requiring sprinkler systems throughout all schools not entirely of fire resistive construction, the school group declared,

"We have no objections to a requirement to provide sprinklers in school buildings of combustible construction."

However, the group said, "We feel that it is unreasonable to require sprinklers in fire resistive school buildings even though it has a wood roof cut off by a fire resistive ceiling."

About 70 of the 102 public schools needing sprinklers, under terms of the ordinance, fall into that category.

Rule on an Addition. The committee also disputed the requirement that sprinklers be installed in an addition to a school, even though the addition may be entirely of fire resistive construction, if the older building itself is not entirely fire resistive.

It was recommended that the ordinance be modified to require sprinklers for "all combustible interior areas of a building unless these areas are properly cut off from the occupied parts of the building with two-hour fire resistive material."

The section requiring stairwell enclosures to have a fire resistive rating of two hours should be changed to one hour, the committee said, contending that one hour is adequate for complete evacuation of a building.

Plea for Appeals Board. The school officials also called for creation of an appeals board "of qualified personnel appointed by the Mayor" to deal with "questionable cases involving interpretation of the ordinance."

Alex A. Aboussie, a member of the St. Louis Board of Education, is chairman of the committee. Other members are the Rev. John J. Kennedy for parochial schools, Leonard H. Richman for Lutheran schools, J. J. Ritterskamp for Washington University and Elton A. Kropp for St. Louis University.

EX-CONVICT DIES AFTER SHOOTING; SUSPECT IS HELD

Thomas L. Lawrence Fatally Wounded in Unexplained Affray
in Friend's Home.

Thomas Lindell Lawrence, a former convict, died today at City Hospital of wounds suffered in an unexplained shooting at the home of an associate yesterday.

Police were called to the third-floor apartment of John Terry, 1506 California avenue, at 3:30 p.m. Lawrence, who had been shot five times in the back of the head and neck, was lying unconscious on the kitchen floor. He died at 2:40 a.m. without making a statement. Glasses and a bottle indicated that several persons had been drinking in the kitchen before the shooting, police said.

Frank J. Hickey, a former convict, was arrested for questioning in the killing, after Terry said Hickey had been in the flat and had drawn a revolver. Hickey, who served a prison term for murder, denied having been present. He was arrested at his home in the 10000 block of Crete drive, Bissell Hills, and was held for investigation.

Had Been Drinking. Terry told police he and Lawrence had had some drinks in a tavern at 2756 Park avenue, around a corner from Terry's home. Lawrence lived at 2754A Park avenue. Lawrence purchased a bottle of liquor, soda and ice. Terry, Lawrence and Hickey then went to Terry's flat, the latter told police.

Following several drinks in the kitchen, Hickey drew a revolver and Lawrence started running toward the door, Terry related. The shooting followed. Terry later changed his account. He said he was in the bathroom and heard the shots, but did not witness the shooting.

After the shooting, Terry ran back to the tavern and shouted, "That—just shot Lawrence."

Someone in the tavern telephoned police.

Lawrence, 43 years old, was questioned in December, 1958, in the unsolved murder of James S. Bullock. He was released after a lie detector test indicated he had nothing to do with the killing.

Victim of Previous Shooting. Last Jan. 10 Lawrence was shot six times at the Trade Wind, a tavern at 1451 Chouteau avenue. George (Gug) Faheen, former Cuckoo gangster whose wife operates the tavern, refused to make a statement. He was released after Lawrence and a witness failed to connect him with the shooting.

Police attributed the affray to a flareup between two "mean men." Lawrence spent a month in City Hospital recuperating from the wounds.

In January 1959, Lawrence and his brother, Clyde (Mickey) Lawrence, were questioned in the killing of Herman E. Fatchett and George W. Jines at Opal's Tavern, 1805 Lafayette avenue, early New Year's day. The brothers had been sitting at a table with Jines and Fatchett before the shooting. A coroner's jury found that Fatchett, a former convict, and Jines, a truck driver, killed each other.

Sentenced in Killing. Lawrence was sentenced to serve one to seven years in an Illinois penitentiary in 1953 on a plea of guilty of manslaughter in the killing of Jack Kelly, operator of a night club near Madison.

At the time of the killing Lawrence was free on bond in the shooting Dec. 31, 1951, of Roy Ashby at Club 88, on the outskirts of East St. Louis. Ashby, shot five times, was paralyzed.

Hickey was charged with the murder of Donald Tierney, 19 years old, a high school football player and boxer, in a fight at the former Kitty Kat Club, 708 North Kingshighway, in September 1948. Tierney was killed when he went to the aid of a companion in the fight. Hickey was sentenced in May 1949 to a 15-year penitentiary term on a plea of guilty of second degree murder in the killing. He was paroled from prison in 1955.

The state parole office notified St. Louis police today that it had revoked Hickey's parole because of yesterday's shooting and a warrant for his commitment to prison would be forwarded.

Police said Hickey had associated with the Lawrence brothers recently. Another former convict, who was reported to have been with Hickey and Lawrence yesterday, is being sought for questioning.

Thomas Lawrence also was an associate of Gene O. Dix, a confederate operator who was stabbed to death early last Wednesday, Officers said. Police are investigating a possible connection between the two killings.

LEGION ORATORICAL WINNER PENN. YAN, N.Y., April 12 (AP)—Lanny D. Unruh, 17 years old, of Newton, Kan., won the 1960 American Legion national oratorical contest and a $4000 college scholarship yesterday.

Manuel Don, 17, of Tucson, Ariz., was second; Robert N. Peery Jr., 18, of Newton, N.C., was third and Richard J. Stillman, 16, of Carlisle, Pa., was fourth. The second place finisher receives a $2500 scholarship, third a $1000 scholarship and fourth a $500 scholarship.

MOVE TO BLOCK BREAD WEIGHT LAW REFUSED

Judge Sam Blair Denies Injunction to Delay Enforcement—Appeal Possible.

By BOYD F. CARROLL Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12—Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair of Cole county today denied an injunction to block enforcement of a new state bread weight law.

The statute, which provides that bakers must produce loaves in weights of one-half pound, one pound, a pound and a half, or multiples of one pound, had been challenged by six members of the Missouri Bakers' Association.

Judge Blair did not file an opinion, but noted his decision in his docket book. It is not known whether the bakers will appeal to the State Supreme Court.

The act became effective last Aug. 29, but was not enforced by John Sam Williamson, state commissioner of agriculture, until last March 15.

In their petition to enjoin enforcement of the law, the bakers contended they would be forced to spend more than $1,000,000 for changes in baking equipment, transportation methods, stores, plants and bakeries in order to comply.

The weights prescribed "do not comply with consumer needs and demands," they said. The most popular loaf of bread, they added, is a fluffy loaf that weighs 1 1/4 pounds.

The state, in arguments before Judge Blair, said the bread weight provisions of the new law were designed to protect consumers and law-abiding producers from those who attempt to gain business "through fraudulent means."

gration division of the United States Department of Justice; now the Department of Health, Education and Welfare." Department officials said they were mystified by the claim.

The announcement also says the institution is an "approved member of World Universities, Inc." and "affiliated with Accademia Universitaria Internazionale, Rome, Italy."

Claims Full License.

The school advertises that its students may obtain a full license as consultant and "practitioner."

Flemming had named Mid-Western University last October as an "example of the elusiveness of degree mills." He had been unable to find it either at its former address, "Drawer 8, Mehlville Station, St. Louis" or at Arcadia, where a Post-Dispatch reporter had interviewed Owen two weeks earlier in his 17-room home.

Flemming also listed the Neotarian Fellowship, Pickwick Building, Kansas City, as a degree mill. The institution offers degrees after a series of lessons by mail for as short a time as 15 weeks.

A price list on the Neotarian Fellowship application form quotes rates ranging from $100 for doctor of psychology to $250 for doctor of philosophy.

Questionnaire Sent Out.

Flemming said his first list was based mainly on information provided by the schools themselves. The Office of Education two months ago sent a questionnaire to 480 schools, including many legitimate correspondence schools. Replies were received from about 250, but not all the replies have yet been analyzed, he said.

Last weekend, another 200 questionnaires were sent out.

He explained that the list includes degree mills currently operating, those closed recently enough to constitute a problem through activities of their "alumni," and those established in the United States but active only in foreign countries.

Eleven of the institutions listed are active abroad, and six have granted degrees in India, Pakistan, Formosa, Lebanon, Iran, Germany, Hong Kong and the Union of South Africa, he said.

Robbers' Trap

to talk to Mrs. Younger. She greeted them with a wink, and wiggled a forefinger, as if firing a pistol. Indicating a nearby room, she told the officers in low tones that she had been held up and that the robbers were hiding in the room.

When the men refused to obey shouted orders to surrender, Zelle ran downstairs and radioed for assistance. DeBisschop fired one shot when the door was opened and then quickly shut. Zelle, returning, fired five shots through the door. Two men came out, with their hands in the air.

The prisoners identified themselves as Richard Franzen, 32 years old, and his brother, Roy, 27, of Chicago. A loaded .32-caliber revolver was found in the room. Roy Franzen had $105 in his pockets. Mrs. Younger reported she was robbed of about $100.

Threatened to Kill Her.

Mrs. Younger said one of the men had threatened to kill her if she revealed their presence to police. One held the revolver in his hand when the pair crouched behind the desk during the conversation between DeBisschop and Mrs. Younger.

The Franzen brothers told police they arrived here from Chicago by bus on Sunday and registered at the St. Francis Hotel, 604 Chestnut street. They said they had been released March 3 from jail at Chicago after serving terms for burglary. They are held pending application for robbery warrants.

Mrs. Younger, 60 years old, was treated for hysteria at City Hospital following the experience. She lives at the hotel. In the confusion the identity of the woman who stood on the third-floor roof and first motioned to DeBisschop was not learned.

The officers' shots did not strike anyone.

vers of the Parking Meter Department said today the rates were not raised to obtain more revenue. He said the increase was made to discourage a motorist from occupying a parking space for several hours in areas where such space is in great demand.

$1,150,000 Transferred.

Before the suit was filed, Travers said, the aldermen transferred a total of $1,150,000 in parking receipts to general operating budgets.

The Supreme Court's decision opened the way for the city to use $665,000 in parking meter receipts which have accumulated since the adverse ruling was made in March 1959 by Judge Reagan. The city also has imposed an additional $225,000 in parking meter violation fines, pending outcome of the suit.

City officials said planning can now proceed for installation of electric traffic signals needed at numerous intersections.

Most of St. Louis's program to improve traffic flow had been halted by the lack of funds, pending the Missouri Supreme Court's ruling on the appeal.

The Supreme Court said Judge Reagan was correct in holding that the commission could not fix parking fees or set the zones in which various fees were charged, because such acts are legislative functions.

"Delegation of this function without criterion or standards is unlawful," the opinion said. The higher court said in its opinion:

"We are confronted with a situation where the city has a parking meter fund, either part or all of which accumulated under invalid ordinances. No one is contending that he is entitled to a refund of any portion thereof and, as a practical matter, it is impossible for the city to refund this money to those thousands who may have used the parking meters at the times in question."

"Under the peculiar circumstances, with the fund in existence, with no claimants to the fund and no refund possible, it is our view the city should not now be enjoined from transferring to general revenue and using the parking meter funds for furthering the regulation of traffic, including the provision for off-street parking facilities."

Plaintiffs' Arguments.

Plaintiffs argued during trial of the suit that with big surpluses in the parking meter fund, it was plain that the fees charged for parking were set at revenue-gaining levels.

The city has no constitutional right or statutory right to charge for parking as a revenue measure, it was argued.

The court said that only under its police power could the city set parking meter fees. It would remain to be seen whether any new parking meter ordinance would set fees at a level permissible under traffic control authority, the opinion said, without commenting on the present rates.

The opinion was written by Judge Elmo B. Hunter of the Kansas City Court of Appeals, who was sitting with Division 2 of the Supreme Court as a special judge. All of the judges of the division concurred in his ruling.

Ministers Meet

lished was new. They covered the five-year period since the last summit conference.

The caution against over-optimism matched the note that British Secretary Lloyd struck yesterday as he arrived from London. Lloyd, however, added a prediction that a summit parley would succeed in reducing European tension.

Diplomatic officials reported as the Allied foreign ministers began their work that all were solidly agreed on the need to stand firm in Berlin in the face of the Soviet pressure.

Lloyd was reported ready to soft pedal his proposals for a "flexible" Berlin settlement, realizing he was confronted with solid German-French opposition as well as a toughening American attitude on this issue.

Differences on disarmament were described as almost nonexistent. The only area of lively discussion was reported to be in the East-West relations phase of proposals being drafted.

Herter was reported taking a dim view of a French suggestion for joint Western-Soviet economic aid to underdeveloped countries. He was also reported enthusiastic about a British-French idea of trying to persuade Russia to agree to an international code of conduct.

Herter and Spaak Meet.

Secretary General Paul-Henri Spaak of the Atlantic Pact met for an hour with Herter yesterday. He avoided predictions on the final outcome of the East-West parley. He served notice the Western allies will never accept any Soviet proposal to dismantle their alliance in return for scrapping the Communist Warsaw pact.

"I don't think it is realistic at this time," he told newsmen after meeting with Herter.

Spaak, who will take part in some of the sessions here, conceded that disarmament—rather than the future of Berlin, Germany and East-West relations generally—looked like the main discussion topic at the summit.

But he disclosed that a team of Allied diplomats had come up with what he called "some ideas" they wanted the Western summit chiefs to offer Khrushchev in the field of East-West relations. Spaak did not disclose what these ideas were.

Agriculture Figure.

The national drop in agricultural employment from March 1959 amounted to 638,000.

The number of workers employed on construction projects dropped 116,000 to 2,292,000 while employment in wholesale and retail trade fell by 33,000 to 11,333,000.

The effect of the bad weather was particularly noticeable in the number of persons who, although employed, were unable to work part or all of the week in which the Labor Department's survey was made.

Wolfbein said the number of those employed but off the job the full week was 825,000, a figure he termed "fabulous." In March 1959, he noted, the number off their jobs for a full week was only 170,000. The number of persons able to work only part of the week because of inclement weather totaled 2,200, 000, an increase of 1,000,000 over the month, he added.

The number of persons who had been out of work 15 weeks or more rose by 253,000 last month to a total of 1,217,000. The increase was substantially more than the slight rise generally experienced between February and March.

SEWER BUILDER INJURED IN FALL INTO EXCAVATION

Thomas A. Godi, a bricklayer for the Metropolitan Sewer District, suffered a compound fracture of the left leg, laceration of the scalp and a possible head injury today when he fell from a board into an eight-foot excavation at Twenty-first street and Linton avenue.

Godi, 831 Rusdon lane, Crestwood, was working with two other men in building a new sewer at the northeast corner of the intersection. He apparently slipped on the board, police said. He was treated at Christian Hospital and later transferred to Barnes Hospital.

PISTOL-WHIPPED, ROBBED BY 3 YOUTHS IN ALLEY

Milton Yakovitz, 7336 Tulane avenue, University City, a collector, was robbed of $175 yesterday after being pistol-whipped by three youths in an alley at the rear of 1818 Prairie avenue.

Yakovitz, 37 years old, told police he was leaving the building at the Prairie avenue address when he was accosted by the three youths, one of whom had a revolver. They demanded his money, but after he gave them part of the money from one pocket they struck him on the head with the revolver and took the remainder of the money from another pocket, he told police.

The youths fled on foot in different directions. Yakovitz, a collector for the Morris Furniture and Clothing Co., 827 North Sixth street, refused medical attention.

RESIDENCE ZONING CHANGE IS VETOED

A bill which would have permitted three-family usage of large three-story dwellings in areas for one-and-two family homes was vetoed today by Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

The Mayor said he acted on recommendation of the director of public safety and the building commissioner, who raised questions about the legality of the change in the comprehensive zoning ordinance.

The change should be considered, he said, in a general revision of the ordinance now being prepared by the City Plan Commission.

The City Plan Commission had recommended approval of the vetoed bill. It was introduced last January by Alderman Joseph B. McDonald (Dem.), Twenty-fifth Ward, and approved by the board.

The measure stipulated that buildings would have had to have been in existence before April 1950 and be on lots at least 6000 square feet in order to qualify for three families.

Other interior space requirements and parking facilities were listed.

The bill is not subject to reconsideration because the aldermen are not in session.

Mayor Tucker indicated that he believed the bill in its present form would have interfered with the city's campaign against conversion of large buildings into illegal rooming houses.

He acknowledged, however, that permitting three-family homes might offer some economic relief to owners.

CASH, RINGS, OLD COINS STOLEN BY BURGLARS

The home of Ben W. Breer at 10538 Mimosa lane, Sappington, was entered last night by burglars who stole more than $287 in cash, two diamond rings valued at $650 and some old coins. Breer reported to St. Louis county police.

Entry was gained by breaking a pane of glass in a garage door and forcing the kitchen door. The loot was taken from two bedrooms, police said.

said, "This hope has not been realized. "On the contrary, increased tensions in the Caribbean area accompanied by ample evidence of demands for armaments far in excess of any conceivable need for self-defense have made it necessary for the United States Government to broaden its policy so as to cover all items which have a military potential."

Note on Guantanamo.
In another note, the United States rejected as unfounded a Cuban charge that former Batista army men are being employed at the United States Navy base at Guantanamo. The note also refused a request to rehire a Cuban labor leader who had been fired at the base.

The third note turned down a Cuban request to keep United States fruit inspectors in Cuba. These Agriculture Department inspectors had been sent to Cuba in 1955 to help Cuban shippers meet United States marketing standards for fruits and vegetables.

The note said the inspectors were needed elsewhere and that Cuba had been notified last December that they would be withdrawn by the end of February. There was no protest until the day after they left, the department said.

Dorticos Charges Eisenhower With Interference.
HAVANA, April 12 (AP)—Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos accused President Eisenhower today of interfering in Cuba's internal affairs through remarks contained in a letter to Chilean university students last Thursday.

Dorticos's charge—made in a letter to the same students—represented the first official reaction to the Eisenhower letter. However, pro-government newspapers had assailed Mr. Eisenhower's comments.

Mr. Eisenhower said many long-time friends of Cuba believe the Fidel Castro regime has betrayed the ideals of "freedom of expression, equal protection of the laws and the right freely to choose a representative form of government."

Dorticos invited the students to come to Cuba and "judge the situation for themselves." He said the President's action was "lamentable" and would further impede efforts to ease strained

Three FPC Members Took Trip In Plane of Gas Pipeline Firm

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, April 12 — Three members of the Federal Power Commission flew to Shreveport, La., and back last month in the private airplane of a pipeline company which has $45,800,000 in rate increase applications pending before the FPC, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

FPC Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall acknowledged that he and two other commissioners, Arthur Kline and Frederick Stueck, made the trip in a plane owned by the United Gas Pipe Line Co. of Shreveport, one of the country's largest natural gas pipeline firms.

Kuykendall said the purpose of the trip was to attend the funeral of John B. Hussey, a member of the commission, who died March 17. Joseph H. Gutridge, secretary of the commission, also was on the flight, the chairman said.

Kuykendall and two other FPC members, Kline and William R. Conole, have come under fire in recent weeks as a result of their admitted off-the-record talks with a Washington attorney, Thomas G. (Tommy) the Cork Corcoran, about a pipeline case involving another company.

Takes Responsibility.
Discussing the flight to Shreveport Kuykendall told the Post-Dispatch: "I considered this thoroughly, and I am responsible for it. I talked to the others (Kline and Stueck) about it, and I told them I would take the responsibility for any publicity."

Shortly after Hussey's death, Kuykendall said, he received a long distance telephone call from Ed Parkes of Shreveport, president of United Gas Pipe Line, offering to fly members of the commission to Shreveport for the funeral.

The chairman said he accepted the offer because he did not think it would be possible to obtain commercial plane accommodations in time to get to Shreveport for a Rosary service for Hussey the night of March 18.

He said he and the others flew to Shreveport and attended the Rosary service and the funeral March 19. They returned to Washington March 19, also on the company plane, he said.

Paid Own Hotel Bills.
In response to questions, Kuykendall said the FPC members paid their own bills at the Captain Shreve Hotel and did not claim per diem or travel expenses from the Government. He said they were not entertained by officials of the pipeline company.

The chairman said he knows Parkes "but not well." He said he had never used a United Gas Pipe Line Co. plane before. The FPC members did not take their wives with them on the trip, he said.

"This was not a junket or a pleasure trip—it was an errand of mercy and helpfulness," Kuykendall said.

Asked whether he knew that United Gas Pipe Line has rate cases pending before the commission, Kuykendall replied: "I certainly do."

FPC records show that the company has six rate increase applications, for a total of $45,803,306 a year, pending before the commission.

United Gas Pipe Line is one of the principal suppliers of natural gas to Mississippi River Fuel Corp. of St. Louis, which in turn sells gas to Laclede Gas Co. of St. Louis.

Rate Procedure.
Under FPC procedure, the commission can suspend a rate increase sought by a company for a period of up to five months. If the FPC has not acted on the request after five months, the rate increase goes into effect subject to refund if it is finally denied in whole or in part by the commission.

The following rate increase applications filed by United Gas Pipe Line Co. are pending before the commission:

An increase of $9,378,906 annually, suspended on Oct. 26, 1955, went into effect subject to refund April 1, 1956.

An increase of $5,856,200 annually, suspended June 15, 1956, went into effect subject to refund Nov. 15, 1956.

A $5,339,000 annual increase, suspended June 27, 1958, went into effect Dec. 1, 1958.

A $7,763,600 annual increase, suspended April 29, 1959, went into effect Oct. 1, 1959.

A $11,413,000 annual increase, suspended last March 11. This increase has not yet gone into effect subject to refund.

Three Are Republicans.
Hussey, the only Democrat on the FPC, lived in Shreveport. Kuykendall, Kline and Stueck are Republicans and Conole lists himself as an Independent.

Stueck is from St. Louis.

Kuykendall said he knew that Conole had an engagement elsewhere at the time of Hussey's funeral and for this reason he did not invite Conole to go along. Kline told the Post-Dispatch that no officials of the United Gas Pipe Line were on the plane.

Kuykendall, who was appointed to the FPC in 1953 by President Eisenhower, has been criticized previously for a trip he took at the expense of the natural gas industry and for his frequent social contacts with representatives of companies subject to FPC regulation.

He has defended these practices, saying that it is necessary for FPC members to talk to industry representatives to keep informed of developments in the industry.

Guest of Association.
Kuykendall admitted several years ago that he was the guest of the Independent Natural Gas Association, whose member firms are subject to FPC jurisdiction.

Conole and Kline are scheduled to appear before the House Interstate Commerce Committee next Thursday for questioning about the private conversations they had with Corcoran about the case of the Midwestern Gas Transmission Co.

Kuykendall previously has admitted to the committee that he had two private talks with Corcoran about the same case after the official public record in the proceeding had been closed and before the FPC reached its decision.

Gray Hair? Use
Herbold Pomade
—an amazing
Hair Cream to

Tone Down Gray Hair Gradually; Keep it Neat, Alive, Young Looking

When grayness first appears, your hair may become dry, drab, dull, streaked—lack color, lustre and life; making you look older than you really are. To forever prevent anyone from thinking of you as old and gray, start using Herbold Pomade (creamy or liquid) as your regular hair dressing.

Gray hair needs a good conditioner hair dressing. So why not use HERBOLD POMADE to solve your hair problems all at once. It gradually blends in the right color just for you, subtly changing gray, streaked, faded, or mousey hair to the color and condition it used to be before it turned gray. But does not change your natural color—only enriches it.

Not a Coal Tar Dye, Tint or Rinse! That's why hair never looks artificial or dyed. No sudden or drastic change. No grayness shows at the roots. No shades to confuse you, just one Herbold Pomade adds the right color for your hair.

SO EASY TO USE—If the years have stolen the natural color and oils from your hair, leaving streaks of dry lifeless gray, simply use HERBOLD POMADE instead of your regular hair dressing. Massage it in with fingertips, daily until grayness is no longer visible. Then 2 or 3 times a week to keep it that way.

KANSAS KILLER SPARED, DOCKING BARS HANGINGS

TOPEKA, Kan., April 12 (AP)—Gov. George Docking commuted today the death sentence of a killer and indicated strongly that he will take similar action on any future cases involving capital punishment.

The man whose life the governor spared was 21-year-old Bobby Joe Spencer, who had admitted he clubbed a woman to death and then slit her throat in a robbery.

After signing the commutation of sentence of Spencer—thereby reducing it to life imprisonment—Docking said:

"I don't think I am of sufficient importance to make the people of Kansas into professional hangmen."

"Is there anyone who feels that capital punishment is a deterrent to crime?"

The case of Spencer was the first involving capital punishment which has come up in Docking's three years in office. Two cases which likely will reach the governor's desk in a few months are those of Richard Hickock and Perry Smith, condemned to die for killing Herbert Clutter and three other members of his family to eliminate witnesses to a robbery in their farm home near Garden City.

Another is that of Earl Wilson, 21-year-old Kansas City (Kan.) man sentenced to hang for raping an 18-year-old girl.

All three now have appeals pending in the Kansas Supreme Court.

COURT RULES CITIZENS CAN'T SUE TO BAR NUCLEAR TESTS

WASHINGTON, April 12 (UPI)—The United States Court of Appeals ruled today that citizens cannot sue the Federal Government to prevent it from carrying out nuclear tests.

The court upheld a lower court action dismissing the complaint of a group of 28 scientists and private individuals, including Dr. Linus C. Pauling, Nobel prize winner.

The group sought to stop all nuclear tests on grounds they are illegal and will cause "worldwide fallout of radioactive debris," contaminating the food supply and bones of humans. The court said that the persons who filed the suit have no standing to sue because they can point to no specific threatened injury to themselves.

MRS. D. CALHOUN JONES DIES; WIFE OF LAWYER

Mrs. D. Calhoun Jones, wife of a lawyer, died yesterday of a heart ailment at her home, 10 North Kingshighway. She was 55 years old.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a son, D. Calhoun Jones Jr., and two daughters, Mrs. Robert H. Cobb Jr. of Dallas, Tex., and Mrs. Margaret Jones Wall.

Funeral services will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be private.

TWO BOYS CAUGHT IN ACT OF ROBBING PARKING METER

Two boys, 12 and 14 years old, who were caught early today knocking the coin box out of a parking meter, admitted, police said, that they made a nightly practice of robbing meters.

Patrolman Walter Juelich, Lucas Avenue District, arrested the pair in the 2900 block of Locust boulevard after he observed one boy "bracing" the meter standard while the second youth knocked the coin box free with a hammer. The older boy boasted he had "invented the system" of bracing the standard and then using a hammer. His younger companion had $4.80, loot from a box forced open previously.

Police said the boys told them a number of newsboys have been stealing from parking meters, after completing their nightly newspaper sales. More than 100 meters have been broken open in the midtown area in recent months.

BOILERMAKERS UNION HEAD BACKS STUART SYMINGTON

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 12 (UPI)—William A. Calvin, president of the 160,000-member International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Blacksmiths, announced yesterday his endorsement of Senator Stuart Symington's candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

"I believe that Stuart Symington is the strongest candidate the Democratic party can put before the nation in November," Calvin told reporters.

The candidacy of the Missouri Senator was recently endorsed by two other labor leaders—George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, and James B. Carey, president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

Relaxation is Only Cure For Headaches Doctors Say

If you can relax, you can probably overcome your own headaches, doctors report. Most headaches arise from emotional tensions, and only relaxation can cure them. But, if you can't relax, you may be one who can benefit by a remarkable new treatment. Its ingredients are being prescribed for millions today. It is safe, non-habit-forming and not only gives fast relief from headaches, but eases the tensions that cause them—the pressure-swollen blood vessels, tight neck muscles, and other sources of the discomfort. This modern defense against man's ancient enemy, the common headache, is known as SAL-FAYNE. It is now available in pink capsule form without prescription, at your favorite drug counter. 6 SEIZED IN GHOSTING
OF COLLEGE PAPERS
NEW YORK, April 12—Six persons, including the assistant principal of a Brooklyn public school, were arrested here yesterday charged with preparing or offering to prepare term papers and these for college students. Their fees were said to have ranged from $25 for a term paper to $3000 for a doctoral dissertation. The six were charged in grand jury informations. District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said that the informations against the six set forth 35 counts of fraud involving 25 students in 14 colleges and universities, most of them in the New York area. Hogan reported that of the 25 students, nine were elementary or high school teachers working on graduate degrees. The assistant principal was identified by Hogan as Morris H. Needleman, of public school 27 in Brooklyn, who has taught in the public schools since 1937. (The Associated Press identified the other five as Joseph Lasky, Mrs. Florence Van Swaerengen, Margaret Ryan, and Samuel J. Michaelson, all operators of ghost writing agencies, and James Buttery, a free lance writer.) The grand jury informations name students attending New York university, Hunter college, Long Island university, City college, Columbia university, Teachers college at Columbia, Brooklyn college, St. John's university, Yeshiva university, Hofstra college, Fordham School of Social service, Elmira college, Brooklyn college School of Nursing Science, the New School for Social Research and two unnamed institutions.

LEADERS' MOVE TO DUMP HOFFA IS REPORTED

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, April 12 — A purported move by some international officers of the Teamsters Union to dump James R.
Hoffa as the union's general president was disclosed here yesterday.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, the embattled chairman of the court-appointed Teamsters board of monitors, disclosed the second-hand report of the anti-Hoffa maneuver in the course of bitter legal proceedings. O'Donoghue also reported a telephone threat by Hoffa to "get" him and an angry denunciation by Hoffa of the monitors' chief as a "cry baby."

Testifying under oath in a pretrial hearing, O'Donoghue said he had been told in January 1960 by Godfrey Schmidt, one of the monitors at that time, that Edward Bennett Williams, the Teamsters' chief counsel, was "representing a dissident group in the international executive board wanting to get rid of Hoffa."

Proposal to Judge.

Schmidt, according to O'Donoghue, also told him that Williams had approached United States District Judge F. Dickinson Letts, who has jurisdiction over the monitorship, with a plan for Hoffa's resignation as one way of untangling the legal snarl that has enmeshed the union's affairs since Hoffa's election as president in October 1957.

O'Donoghue said that Schmidt mentioned names of international officers supposedly involved in the anti-Hoffa scheme. One, he said, was Einar Mohn, an international vice president and now chairman of the powerful Western Conference of Teamsters.

O'Donoghue said he inquired of Mohn as to the accuracy of Schmidt's report and was told by him there was no such plan being discussed and that "Williams had no right to make such a statement."

Williams, who has represented
Hoffa in two criminal trials involving charges of bribery and perjury, is in New York handling the defense of Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.),
New York, in his trial on charges of income tax evasion.
Judge Letts is on a Caribbean cruise.

Hoffa sat stoically a few feet from O'Donoghue as he related the story of the purported plot to ease out Hoffa.

No Truth, Says Hoffa.

Later the Teamster chieftain told reporters that "there is not the slightest basis of truth" in what O'Donoghue said.

Jacob Kossman of Philadelphia, a Teamsters' attorney who was questioning O'Donoghue, asked him if he knew that Schmidt, as part of the settlement overtures, was trying to get a claimed $210,000 legal fee against the union increased to $300,000. O'Donoghue replied he had no knowledge of that.

O'Donoghue was being interrogated for a deposition as a preliminary to trials of a suit April 27 before Judge Letts in which O'Donoghue, acting for the three-member watchdog panel, seeks to have Hoffa removed from office for alleged refusal to follow clean-up directives.

O'Donoghue has a long list of complaints against Hoffa, ranging from his upholding the alleged rigged election of Harold J. Gibbons, his executive assistant, as president of the Teamsters Joint Council at St. Louis, to the alleged use of $500,000 of funds from Hoffa's home Local 299 at Detroit, to guarantee a Florida bank loan.

Proceeds of the loan were used to promote a real estate development where retired Teamsters were solicited to buy lots. The monitors charge Hoffa had a personal financial interest in the development.

CHOU EN-LAI TO VISIT NEPAL

TOKYO, April 12 (AP)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai will visit the tiny Himalayan kingdom of Nepal for three days beginning April 26, the Peiping radio reported today.

The broadcast said Chou accepted Nepalese Prime Minister Koirala's invitation to visit Nepal after he meets with Indian Prime Minister Nehru in New Delhi
April 19 to 25. Koirala visited

RIVERS CONTINUE FALL, MOST LEEVEE PATROLS DISBAND

Both the Mississippi and Missouri rivers were falling below their flood peaks in the St. Louis area today.

Employees of the Army Corps of Engineers and farmers still patrolled water-soaked levees in St. Charles county. But the Missouri river, which crested at 32.2

feet at St. Charles last Friday, was falling at a rate of one-tenth of a foot an hour. It is now below 30 feet.

Elsewhere on the Missouri, patrolling of levees had ceased.
The river was down four feet from its crest at Hermann and three and one-half feet below its peak at Washington.

The Mississippi river stood at 33.1 feet at St. Louis, a fall of six-tenths of a foot in the last 24 hours. A crest of 33.77 feet was reached at noon Sunday. Flood stage is 30 feet.

VALIANT BEATS OTHER TWO NEW COMPACTS

Ever since the three new compact cars were introduced last fall the question has been which one of the three could get the best gasoline mileage. That question has been answered.
Valiant can, and did in the Mobilgas Economy Run. A Valiant 4-door sedan, equipped with automatic transmission, covered the 2,061.4 miles from Los Angeles to Minneapolis averaging 27.2992 miles per gallon. When it comes to squeezing the most miles out of a gallon of gas, Valiant beats the carburetors off the "other two". See the man who sells 'em.

RISS TRUCK AND AFFILIATE FINED $50,000 EACH

JEFFERSON CITY, April 12 (AP)—The Missouri Supreme Court yesterday ordered Riss and Co., of Kansas City and an affiliate to pay fines of $50,000 each, plus costs, in 30 days or be barred from doing business in Missouri.

A special commissioner of the court, E. C. Curtis of Springfield, concluded earlier that the big trucking firm and its supply affiliate, Transport Manufacturing and Equipment Co., should be fined $25,000 each for repeated violations of Missouri's motor vehicle registration laws.

The Supreme Court noted the state lost about $250,000 in fines and more than $300,000 in registration fees because of their unlawful operations in 1954 and 1955.

"The extent to which respondents were enriched by their continued and constant violations of the registration laws of Missouri is somewhat indicative of the extent to which they should be penalized," the high court said in an opinion by Chief Justice Frank Hollingsworth.

The 29-page opinion climaxed years of feuding between the trucking company and the state over license and registration fees. Hundreds of truck drivers were arrested and several lawsuits were filed before the ouster suit was filed by Attorney General John M. Dalton on Jan. 25, 1956. The state contended it had lost $750,000 in revenue.

Reviewing the controversy, the Supreme Court noted the parts played by Governor James T. Blair, then an attorney for Riss; former Senator Charles L. Madison (Rep.) Kansas City, who tried to intercede for the Riss firm, and officials of the Highway department and Highway Patrol.

PLANE PASSENGER SEIZED FOR FALSE REPORT OF BOMB

INDIANAPOLIS, April 12 (AP)—A Lake Central Airlines plane turned back in flight last night because of a bomb threat, and FBI agents arrested a Michigan City (Ind.) man on a charge of making a false bomb report.

The FBI accused Waterman F. Brown Jr. of telling a stewardess aboard Flight 724 that he had boarded the plane with a bomb.

Don A. Tabbert, United States attorney, said plane personnel reported that Brown told the stewardess, "There's a bomb around my feet," then repeated the statement to the pilot after the co-pilot took the controls. The pilot turned back at once.

At a preliminary hearing here today, Brown denied he said there was a bomb aboard. He said that when a stewardess was "fussing" with baggage above his head she told him, "Don't let it fall on your head" and he then replied, "You mean like a bomb?"

He said she retorted, "That is not very funny," and went to the pilot's compartment. When she came back with the pilot he apologized to both of them, he said.

PAYMENT WARRANTED

IRONTON, O., April 12 (AP)—Warrants issued by a court clerk 24 years ago have finally been returned to the courthouse here for payment. Treasurer Bernard McKnight says about $80 worth of warrants drawn up in 1935 to pay jurors and witnesses were cashed at a local grocery. But the grocer never turned them in to be reimbursed and they were rediscovered only recently.

CIVIL DEFENSE DRILL ON TV,
RADIO MAY 3

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The civil defense "Operation Alert-1960," scheduled for the first week of May, promises to be quite a show.

The advance preparations are elaborate. This is particularly true of the Conelrad drill on Tuesday, May 3, which will suspend regular programs for 30 minutes on every radio and TV station in the country.

President Eisenhower may deliver a special radio message during this period, perhaps from an "alternate White House" outside Washington. It would be the first time a President has talked to the nation on radio alone for many years.

The Conelrad drill will start at noon (Central Standard Time). Basically it will test the mechanics of the system, designed to confuse direction finders on enemy aircraft.

Sense of Urgency. Federal Communications Commissioner Robert E. Lee, who handles defense matters for the commission, is most anxious that the 30-minute test will convey a sense of urgency to the general public.

The special broadcast is expected to be pitched to this theme:

"Be prepared—build a bomb shelter—equip yourself with a battery-operated radio which will keep you in touch with local and national authorities in the event of a bomb raid."

Lee has ruled that "no music shall be broadcast by any participating station under any circumstances during the 30-minute period of this drill."

In the Conelrad system, radio stations which have signed up to take part will immediately shift to either 640 or 1240 kilocycles and alternate in broadcasting on those frequencies, a maneuver which would throw enemy direction finders into a dither.

Some FM stations will continue on the air with state civil defense networks.

Connected By Wire.

In the May test, Conelrad stations will all be connected by wire. The FCC last week authorized telephone companies to provide such connections to stations not already having them through networks. About 30 seconds before the May 3 drill, every radio and TV announcer in the more than 5000 broadcasting stations across the country will say:

"For the next 30 minutes, this station will discontinue its regular programming to co-operate with the United States Government in testing the Conelrad emergency broadcast system."

A high-pitched tone will be heard for 15 seconds. Then announcers will say:

"This station now leaves the air to co-operate with the United States Government in conducting a Conelrad drill. Please tune your radio to 640 or 1240 kilocycles for a special civil defense program. Normal broadcasting will be resumed in approximately 30 minutes."

Under the plans, there will follow a five-minute national broadcast handled by the four national networks — ABC, CBS, NBC and MBS.

Then there will be 10 minutes

PEVELY...PERFECT MILK

PEVELY HOMOGENIZED MILK

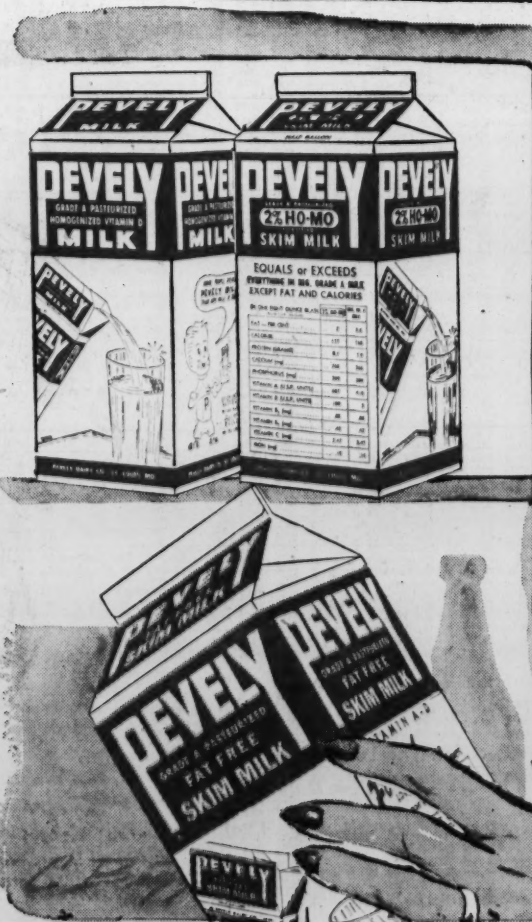

Perfect for your children and for you too. One of the reasons more people drink Pevely Milk than any milk in town. Pevely Homogenized Milk has a rich, creamy flavor. A flavor so delicious it gives you a hint of health in every sip. No wonder we say, "White in the bottle. Pink on the cheeks."

PEVELY 2% HO-MO

Perfect for you if you want delicious milk flavor with less fat and calories. Pevely 2% Ho-Mo actually "Equals or exceeds everything in regular milk except the fat and calories." Remember, Pevely 2% Ho-Mo costs less too.

PEVELY FAT FREE SKIM MILK

Perfect for you if you are dieting. Fortified with vitamins A and D, Pevely Fat Free Skim Milk lets you enjoy all the nutritional values of milk without the fat. You see, it's completely fat free. Pevely Fat Free Skim Milk is now available in economical half gallon cartons.

MORE PEOPLE DRINK PEVELY — The Best Milk — THAN ANY MILK IN TOWN!

Day's Complete New York Stock Transactions

NEW YORK, April 12 (UPI)—The stock market finished with a modest gain today on strong support developing in the final hour.

The advance followed yesterday's decline, which was the widest in two weeks. It was the prediction of the American Iron & Steel Institute that pulled prices lower yesterday and kept them narrowly irregular most of today.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 1.61 points higher at 628.50 at the close. The 20 rails gained .26 of a point at 145.01 and the 15 utilities rose .08 to a new 1960 high of 88.41.

Buyers threw their support behind the issues in the electronics, steel, aircraft and metal groups. Rails, easier yesterday, firmed in their average.

Some brokers believe the market soon will make another attempt at breaking through the barrier of resistance which exists at 636 in the Dow-Jones industrial stock average.

The Associated Press reported that most leading stocks showed small changes, within a point range. Some of the "glamour" stocks spurted. Universal Match and Texas Instruments rose more than 5 points each.

Investment demand put American Telephone at a new high. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .50 to 216.10 with the industrials up .60, the rails up .30 and the utilities up .30 to a new 1960 high.

Of 119 issues traded, 470 advanced and 500 declined. New highs for the year totaled 37 and new lows 50.

Volume was 2,470,000 shares compared with 2,520,000 yesterday and was the lowest since April 1 when 2,260,000 shares were traded.

LONDON STOCK INDEX

LONDON, April 12 (AP)—The Financial Times daily index of London stocks today was 3147, off 2.5.

Vanishing Defense Issue May Be Revived by Pentagon Decision to Cancel Bomarc-SAGE Program Estimated Three Billions Already Spent on Project — Investigation Might Help Taxpayer Understand Waste of Service Rivalry.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
© 1960 St. Louis Post-Dispatch

WASHINGTON, April 12.

THE SO-CALLED DEFENSE issue has largely vanished from sight if only because the military hero in the White House has said repeatedly that he knows more than anyone else in this nuclear-electronic age about America's security and how to achieve it.

But there is a chance that it may be revived in connection with a Pentagon decision to cut back almost to zero the development and production of the Bomarc air defense missile. Some estimates put the amount already spent on Bomarc at three billion dollars.

Senator Henry Jackson (Dem.), Washington, says that when the military construction bill comes before the Armed Services subcommittee he will demand to know why the Bomarc and its allied warning system SAGE is being abandoned after such a huge investment. He points out that Bomarc sites on the West Coast, costing on the average of $13,000,000 each, are to be abandoned.

They will stand, he says indignantly, as monuments to a colossal error in judgment, to put the kindest interpretation on what has happened. Among them are the Payne Air Force Base, near Everett, Wash., 44 per cent completed; Camp Adair, Ore., 67 per cent completed; Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco, 25 per cent completed; Vandenberg in California, 44 per cent.

THE REPLY of the "truth squad" in the office of the Secretary of Defense is, in effect, that development of the Bomarc was justified on earlier intelligence estimates of the number of manned bombers to be produced by Soviet Russia. The new intelligence estimate radically downgrades this number and it credits the Soviets with much greater accuracy in long-range missiles than had previously been assumed.

The total amount that will have been spent on Bomarc-SAGE, according to the Defense Department memorandum, is $3,700,000,000. For this there will ultimately be eight operational Bomarc bases in the East and on the United States-Canadian border, plus a warning system "ready to serve in time of war in the incredibly difficult task of sorting out enemy bombers coming in to attack."

The unofficial intimation out of the Pentagon is that Senator Jackson has been one of the principals pressuring for the continuation of Bomarc. The Boeing plant producing and developing this missile means a large payroll in Seattle in Jackson's home state.

Insisting that he has never at any time applied pressure, Jackson points to the statement of the military construction subcommittee nearly two years ago when efforts were made to get a decision out of the Defense Department as between Bomarc and its Army competitor, the Nike-Hercules.

"IT IS THE COMMITTEE'S firm unanimous opinion," said a report issued in July of 1958, "that decisions must be made to eliminate duplication or otherwise the annual cost of the defense budget will require increases beyond all reasonable proportions."

With the fierce rivalry between the two missile systems, Boeing began a campaign of newspaper advertising to resist any cuts. Prompt newspaper retaliation came from Western Electric and the Bell Telephone Laboratories involved in the production of Nike-Hercules.

Cuts in the far more modest Nike-Hercules program were resisted by Senator Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina. An important payroll in his state was involved and he served notice on the military construction subcommittee that he would publicly challenge any attempt to eliminate Nike-Hercules.

For as long as a year and a half to two years, it was widely said that the Bomarc, an air-breathing missile, would be obsolete by the time it came into full production. In over-all justification of the vast expenditure on Bomarc, the Defense Department argues that with the rapid shift in weaponry it is often necessary to develop systems that will be obsolete before they can be proved out. Research and development still continue on Bomarc A, big brother to Bomarc B.

That argument may be valid, but this looks like such a beautiful example of duplication, commercial rivalry and regional

Support Grows For Stevenson As Nominee

Illinoisan, Back From Latin Tour, Has Advantage Over Rivals.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP). ADLAI E. STEVENSON drew support today for the Democratic presidential nomination despite his repeated statements that he is not a candidate and does not expect to be nominated.

Senator A. S. Mike Monroney of Oklahoma, announced he was for Stevenson and said a personal survey indicated other Democratic candidates believe the two-time party nominee is the man most likely to win the nomination if they themselves do not succeed.

Senator William Proxmire of Wisconsin, said in a separate interview a poll showing Stevenson as second choice of Wisconsin's 31-vote delegation indicated the former Illinois Governor might get some early support from that state at the Los Angeles nominating convention.

SENATOR ROBERT C. BYRD of West Virginia, who is trying to block a victory by Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts in the May 10 West Virginia primary, said there was a "considerable" residue of support for Stevenson in his state.

Stevenson, just returned from a lengthy South American tour, makes a formal address tonight at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville. He is expected to discuss various aspects of foreign policy and avoid domestic politics, but his appearance will put him back into the public eye.

Significantly, perhaps, some of those who worked in his campaign in 1956 were called in to help distribute advance texts of the speech.

Monroney and Proxmire, who is remaining neutral in the nomination contest, agreed that Stevenson's position of not being a candidate gave him an advantage over most of his potential rivals for the nomination.

Proxmire noted that Kennedy and Senators Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Stuart Symington of Missouri had been piling up Senate voting records which have their political liabilities as well as their assets.

Not a 'Draft Evader'

Smiling ADLAI STEVENSON at New York news conference yesterday where he said that he is neither seeking nor expecting a third Democratic presidential nomination. He remarked also that he would not be a "draft evader" if called on to run by the convention.

"While all of the Senators are embroiled in a lot of controversies, Stevenson is standing off from the fray," Proxmire said. "His views are well known in general, but he doesn't have to get himself involved in details."

MONRONEY SAID he had found evidence of widespread support for Stevenson among rank and file members of the party.

Stevenson obviously will have a backlog of strength among delegates pledged to Humphrey, if the latter fails. Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who is running in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Oregon primaries, has said he will be for Stevenson if he cannot get the nomination.

Czech Elections June 12.

VIENNA, April 12 (UPI)—The Czech Communist cabinet decided yesterday to hold general elections June 12. In the last general elections in Czechoslovakia, held in 1954, the so-called "national front" group won 98 per cent of the vote.

Humphrey Asks Health Aid Bill For Aged Now

Senator Urges Congress Not to Wait for 'Go-Slow' Administration.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (UPI).

SENATOR HUBERT H. HUMPHREY (Dem.), Minnesota, urged Congress today to enact a health insurance plan for the aged without waiting for recommendations from the "Republican go-slow, now, veto Administration."

"If we wait," he said, "... we will wait forever."

In a statement to a Senate subcommittee considering various medical care plans, Humphrey called for "government with a heart" to provide health insurance through the social security program for the elderly.

Interrupting his presidential campaigning in West Virginia to testify, Humphrey urged action on the measure he has introduced in the Senate.

HE SAID the "wonderful tool of social insurance" could spread the heavy health care costs of old age over an entire lifetime.

Now, he said, the elderly are required to use up their "meager savings" just at the time when their income is barely enough for simple necessities like food and shelter.

Like the plan advanced by Representative Aime J. Forand (Dem.), Rhode Island, Humphrey's proposed program would be financed by a social security tax increase of one-fourth of one per cent for employers and workers, and three-fourths of one per cent for self-employed.

Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, who is Humphrey's opponent in the West Virginia Democratic presidential primary race, also has introduced a bill similar to Humphrey's and Forand's.

THE ADMINISTRATION strongly opposes the Democratic bills and is studying possible alternatives that would provide insurance on a voluntary basis and through existing private insurance systems if possible.

Challenge to America: Report Sets Drastic Goals for Schools

Office of Education Proposes 50 Pct. Rise in Teacher Salaries, 25-Billion-Dollar Building Program.

WASHINGTON, April 12 (UPI).

AMERICANS WERE CHALLENGED today to accept as their "national goals" in education a 50 per cent increase in teachers' salaries by 1963 and a 25 billion dollar school building program in the next decade.

These admittedly "drastic goals" were proposed in a study prepared by the United States Office of Education for a conference of leaders of 100 educational organizations.

The conference was called by Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Flemming emphasized to reporters that the report was simply a "basis for discussion" and did not necessarily reflect Administration thinking.

However, Dr. Lawrence G. Dertick, commissioner of education, described the report in a foreword as "a professional appraisal of the factual situation" facing Americans in building and maintaining adequate public schools.

THE REPORT SAID that with the nation locked in a life-or-death technological race with Russia, it is a matter of "fearful urgency" to overcome the classroom and teacher shortages in the 10 years ahead.

To attract enough good teachers it said salaries must be "competitive with those in other occupations requiring equivalent training and experience."

The report said this will require raising average teachers' salaries 50 per cent from $4,959 to $7,439 annually by the 1963-64 school year and continuing increases of about 3 per cent a year.

The report said that with in-ance for the aged, which the Administration has not endorsed, was denounced today by AFL-CIO as "clumsy and inequitable."

Nelson Cruikshank, director of the AFL-CIO's social security department, issued a statement attacking the G.O.P. measure.

Representative John Dingell (Dem.), Michigan, said in a statement that "it behooves" the Administration to "shilly-shally around and . . . come forward with no program."

"IT WOULD SEEM that the President, who is probably the No. 1 recipient of socialized medicine and cradle-to-the-grave security in the United States, could do something constructive," Dingell said.

Forand testified in order to "clear up a few points." He told the Senate group that commercial insurance firms are "blind" to oppose his measure. He said his bill would permit the companies to cut premiums and extend coverage without the high risks of insuring the aged.

Margaret Schweinhaut, a Maryland state legislator and chairman of the Maryland Commission on Aging, said the medical profession, which is fighting the Forand bill, actually "brought about the old age problem" with advances that have made it "more difficult to die."

Letters from the People

The Image Between
I have read with interest the progress of the talks with representatives from other nations regarding the disarmament plans. I have noted with pleasure Secretary Herter's statements favoring complete disarmament. This is encouraging.

It is not my purpose to argue the merits of this step. I am sure that Secretary Herter is far more aware of its necessity than I. Instead, I urge that he take every possible step to allay the fear of the Soviet bloc that grips this country.

I believe that the widespread existence in our land of a stereotype of the "evil enemy vs. the guileless prey" is one of the greatest stumbling blocks to the overthrow of our present policy of reliance on military force as a deterrent to war.

Without the eradication of this image of an evil monster ready to pounce upon us in the event of disarmament, it is worse than futile to talk of disarmament with "inspection." No system of inspection will satisfy those who suffer from this malaise.

For this reason, I urge you to emphasize those great areas of common interests and cultural heritage which we share with the Soviet people.

Stress to the world that we really believe that no nation has a monopoly on either good or evil. Strengthen our faith that the best way to overcome an enemy is to make him our friend through positive, constructive acts.

I firmly believe that a vast majority of the American people stand ready to support this view. The vocal minority have ruled too long. Rally the men of faith and trust to an all-out commitment to a bold new program of co-operation with all mankind to build a new world. Springfield, Ill. John R. Scott

The Natural Law

I was amazed at the declarations of the presidential candidates on the population explosion and their theories of how to control it.

There are other ways of limiting population than the means they advocate. I suggest teen-agers wait before contemplating early marriage.

I am not a Catholic but it appears now this is the only religious sect which is not against the natural law.

I do not want my tax money to be used against my belief in the natural law, and I shall protest it if and when such an advocacy comes out.

(Mrs.) Genevieve Young

Ugh!

On May 10, 91 years ago, Union Pacific and Central Pacific rails met at Promontory, Utah. A golden spike ceremony marked the completion of our first transcontinental railroad. Formidable mountain barriers were overcome with primitive equipment. The project was harassed by hostile Indians armed with bows and bootlegged rifles.

Three tribes of modern "Indians" are still trying to destroy the usefulness of our faithful Iron Horse:

1. Bureaupahs, armed with tons of obsolete regulations and miles of red tape, are burying the rails under mountains of political overhead.

2. Assesious are constantly swarming over railroad installations. They are on the warpath to lift the scalp off all taxable assets at double the value of other private property.

3. Spendakotas are shoveling out tax revenue, so collected, for property-tax-free highways, waterways, and gift-wrapped airports for railroads' competitors.

In the interest of national defense, not to mention fair play, the depredations of modern "Indians" on our vital railway network should be curbed.

Way to Remove Blight

With the earnings tax bringing a surplus revenue to the city, perhaps you can push a law whereby the city can contract to remove a blighted building at no cost to the owner except that he be required to give to the city a small per cent of any revenue obtained from the vacant land or building which may be erected. This would halt the need for any further worries about parking, land, etc. downtown.

A Visitor From Nebraska

Getting There First

St. Louis can be thrilled by the portrait of its future downtown area drawn by the City Plan Commission. It is a portrait of a bright new city that might be. But before this city can be, it must first develop an efficient mass transportation system.

The Plan Commission itself says this repeatedly. As quoted in today's Mirror of Public Opinion, the commission states: "A rapid transit system must be developed if we are to reach the growth potential of the central business district."

A glance at the map of the plan shows why this is so. Surrounding the downtown area of the future is an expressway loop; inside that is a rim of parking garages; inside the latter are the long malls, the parkways, new facades, shopper walkways and streets for shuttle busses and other vehicles which would carry people from the outside inward.

In the core, between the highways and garages, 45,000 more persons could live and work and prosper. The riverfront memorial and adjacent stadium area offer a beginning toward a new way of life downtown. Yet before people can enjoy it, they have to be able to go there first—easily and swiftly.

Improving transit depends at this moment largely upon Mayor Tucker. In late March he rejected Public Service Co.'s proposal to improve service in return for abatement of certain local taxes. The Mayor promised to offer an alternative within 30 days.

The alternative certainly will require some form of public decision. In our opinion, public ownership offers the simplest way of putting more funds into improvement of service. It is the logical alternative to subsidization of private transit. The exhaustive study of the Citizens Metropolitan Transit Committee resulted in a proposal for a public transit district, with authority to tax and to convert existing systems to public ownership.

Whatever Mayor Tucker recommends, his proposal should be known before the end of this month. Meanwhile the City Plan Commission has emphasized a lesson that St. Louis has learned through a decade of traffic congestion and declining mass transportation. The bright vista of a new downtown depends on a rapid transit system.

Subtraction in Freedom

Perhaps members of the House Un-American Activities Committee thought they were doing some kind of patriotic service by citing H. Chandler Davis for contempt. Yet the six-month prison term for that brilliant mathematician actually damages the nation's best interests.

Mr. Davis sought protection of the First Amendment in refusing to answer committee questions in 1954 about Communist activities during student days. His plea availed him little; he is in the Federal Correctional Institution at Danbury, Conn. Meanwhile, he has been unable to continue his work as an associate editor for the Mathematical Review. In that post he reviewed research papers with emphasis on those from Russia. As other distinguished mathematicians have protested, America's knowledge of Russian mathematical and scientific progress has been diminished by the imprisonment of Mr. Davis.

For the House Un-American Activities Committee there is a lesson here as to why the Founding Fathers were so insistent upon the First Amendment. The Davis case shows it is difficult to cut off individual roots of freedom of thought without damage to the fruit.

To Protect Defense Dollars

The problem of how to penalize improper use of military influence without penalizing the use of military expertise has not yet been adequately dealt with, despite House passage of the Kilday bill.

This measure, which originated in the House Armed Services Committee after the Hebert subcommittee held extensive hearings, is well described as having only "baby teeth." It provides that retired officers going to work for firms with defense contracts must register at the Pentagon. No officer would be allowed to take a selling job with such a firm until two years after retirement. He could be employed, however, in advisory capacities where his experience might make him of great value to the nation as well as to the company. Violation of the bill would be punishable by loss of two years' retirement pay and by any other penalty a court-martial might direct.

This might indeed be mild punishment where millions of dollars are at stake. Yet criminal penalties are applied to any former employee of the Justice Department who accepts within a two-year period any private employment that involves matters he handled as a public official. This must have been what Representative Hebert had in mind when he sought to amend the bill by providing penalties of up to a year in jail and a $1000 fine. The amendment was defeated.

Representative Hebert has done well to continue the fight for his amendment by submitting a new measure. The substitute bill is a better one in that the defense contractor would be punished.

While it is true that the Hebert subcommittee failed to find any substantiation for numerous allegations and rumors concerning influence peddling in defense jobs, that is no reason for not erecting safeguards. The competition for defense contract billions is stiff. Companies spring up over night and some mushroom amazingly. The new Hebert bill is needed as a warning to anyone who might be tempted to cut corners for quick dollars.

Absent From the Lists

The apathy of the Republican party about Missouri state election races hardly befits champions of a two-party system. The deadline for filing for the Aug. 2 primary is April 28. Yet no G.O.P. candidate has filed for Secretary of State or Attorney General. Only two Republicans have filed for the gubernatorial race—State Representative Edward G. Farmer Jr. of Joplin and Harry C. Timmerman of Sullivan, a political unknown. Jewett Fulkerson, a Liberty farmer and auctioneer, is expected to file soon.

Evidently the Republicans are not eager to enter state contests because they fear they may not win. But the best way to court failure is to concede it in advance. In politics, as in every other kind of endeavor, there is recognition and honor in effort alone. A little persistence might produce even more concrete results for Missouri Republicans in time. Certainly it would earn the gratitude of the public which has a right to a freedom of choice in August and in November.

Speaking of Being Premature

The expected backfire against a nuclear testing treaty appears to be building up, with Democratic members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy playing a prominent part in it. Subcommittee hearings are planned for later this month at which Dr. Edward Teller and other foes of an agreement to ban tests will have a chance to beat the drums of alarm. Chairman McCone of the Atomic Energy Commission and Chairman Clinton P. Anderson of the joint committee already have struck a few drumbeats.

If the Administration proposes a treaty, it will be perfectly in order for the atomic energy committee to study it and comment on it, although the Foreign Relations Committee naturally will have primary jurisdiction. But is it not somewhat premature to hold hearings on a proposal before it has been made—indeed, even before agreement on its terms has been reached at Geneva or the summit conference?

Dr. Hans Bethe, distinguished nuclear physicist who favors a testing ban, has been criticized by joint committee members for prematurely expressing a favorable view of the Soviet proposal on which current negotiations are based. Senator Gore appears to think Dr. Bethe should have waited until he saw the text of the Soviet proposal. But Mr. McCone and Senator Anderson did not wait for the text before denouncing the Soviet plan. Why doesn't Senator Gore criticize them?

Subsequent events have shown Dr. Bethe to be right. He said the Soviet proposal was an important step forward in the negotiations, and it was. Is the committee really interested in seeing to it that there will be no further steps forward? If it mounts an attack on a testing treaty before it knows what the treaty is going to contain, the public will be forced to think so.

Possibilities Still

The Wisconsin primary certainly did nothing to lessen public interest in certain presidential possibilities who are not even unavowed candidates. Vice President Nixon's poor showing in the primary has prompted some Republicans to take another look at Gov. Rockefeller, who has indicated he remains available for the presidential nomination, though not for second place on the ticket. Adlai Stevenson begins a series of speeches which may encourage his followers to agitate for a Stevenson draft. It would be ironic in the extreme if the July conventions turned to Stevenson and Rockefeller. It would be unlikely, too, but by no means impossible.

Focus for the Drug Probe

As the Kefauver committee reopens its hearings on drug prices this week, we hope it is going to begin to focus on legislation which will protect the public in the efficacy, the safety, the quality and the price of pharmaceuticals.

Senator Kefauver has an impressive record for disclosing ills which may call for new legislation—in organized crime particularly, before the present inquiry. His record for following through is unimpressive. The matters he now has under investigation are too important to the public health for their study to be allowed to fizzle out in a shower of fireworks.

We think the subcommittee should be offering, for example, some clues to Congress for legislation to tighten up the patent laws. When a company can license a patent it does not possess, something is wrong. Should patents be permitted merely for processes and combinations? We think this is at least open to discussion.

Perhaps the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade Commission should be empowered to do more than they can do now to prevent misrepresentation about drugs. The question whether high-pressure traveling salesmen should provide physicians with much of what they know about a bewildering stream of new proprietary medicines ought to provoke some definite suggestions from the subcommittee. There have been enough sensational disclosures. Now the time is here for constructive legislation.

Policy at Variance With Law

Logic simply cannot sustain the Department of Justice policy which has convinced United States Attorney William H. Webster that he is precluded from determining whether the failure of Teamsters' Local 688 to report its contributions to the campaign funds of candidates for federal office is a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act.

After consulting superiors in Washington, Mr. Webster said that under a policy established by former Attorney General Brownell, the Department is not disposed to act in such cases unless asked to do so by the clerk of the House or the secretary of the Senate with whom, under the law, campaign fund reports should be filed.

This is based on the view that such reports are for the information of Congress. But most Americans surely are under the impression that the reports also are for their information as voters, that the maximum penalties of two years' imprisonment or a $10,000 fine were set so that they might learn the source and the nature of the candidates' cash support.

Congress may be indifferent to reporting and to the disclosure of information just as it is indifferent to tightening up of the rules governing campaign expenditures. Some members may have personal reasons for not rousing a sleeping dog; and it may be "smart" for the Department of Justice not to antagonize such politicians. But the business of the Department is to enforce the statutes.

Wherever it finds reasonable cause to believe a law has been violated, it should present the facts in court for judgment. Since Local 688 and four of its officers were accused by a grand jury of making illegal campaign contributions, the Department should follow up on the failure to report those contributions.

"THIS IS NOT NECESSARILY A STU."

Transit: Basis for Downtown Plan

Growth of Business District Depends on Development of Mass Transportation

From the New Plan for Downtown St. Louis,
City Plan Commission

The importance of public transportation to the vitality of downtown has been noted; it cannot be over-emphasized. While inter-city and suburban lines bring several thousands of persons into downtown each day, the greatest effort must be directed at carrying more people per day into the core of local transit.

About 65,000 riders destined for the central business district arrive by transit each day.

However, this figure is considerably less than that of 10 years ago. And as transit riding declined the number of cars entering and leaving downtown each day increased. That this pattern reflects national trends, does not diminish the need to re-establish the dominance of transit riding.

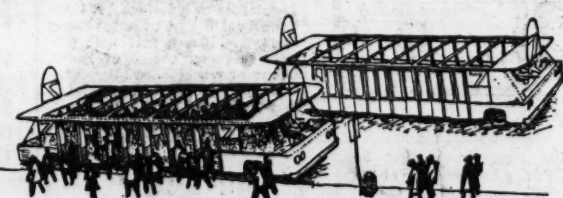

If downtown is to achieve its potential growth, which has been estimated at a 45,000 increase in its workforce, it can be done only with a rapid transit system. Mass transit is essential to the preservation and strengthening of the compactness and density patterns now present.

Completion of the Mark Twain Expressway and the construction of the Ozark and Daniel Boone highways will present new opportunities for express bus service at average speeds which can be competitive to private auto use.

Within the core, by freeing local streets of through traffic and much of the personal vehicular travel, improved transit movement will increase the efficiency of the operation. Use of free zones and pay-leave system would facilitate daily travel operations within the core.

As the plan is developed, adjustments in transit lines can be made which will provide service on all sides of the super-blocks giving better distribution than is apparent today. Use of St. Charles street in peak-hour period business district. The recent study by the W. C. Gilman Co. proposed the use of busses on their own right-of-way or using the expressways as suggested above. In the central district, the survey proposed an elevated right-of-way along Eleventh, Lucas, Sixth and Chestnut streets. Further studies will be needed to determine the best solution and location. Whether above, below, or at grade, rapid transit movements must be provided to the core. Within the core, possible use of electric-powered vehicles with maximum ods and two-way use of Locust street by busses will provide additional loading points. During p.m. peaks, terminal points within the penetrating loop streets in the super-blocks can be used for express bus loading. These units can then move directly into their outbound route. Any increased efficiencies in transit operations should help stabilize fares and improve riding habits.

Ultimately, a rapid transit system must be developed if we are to reach the growth potential of the central loading and unloading features as depicted above may provide the kind of link between generators which the package laden or less energetic pedestrian may prefer.

At the other end of the trip, introduction of parking areas along transit lines should encourage park-ride operations. Just as downtown has a large stake in transit; so transit has a large stake in the development of downtown. The future of both requires vigorous efforts toward the creation of a rapid transit system.

Senator Douglas Was Right From the Peoria Journal Star

A year ago when a handful of "liberals" staged a spectacular but obviously "forlorn hope" attempt to clear the way for civil rights legislation by outlawing the filibuster, we regarded that stunt as useless, as pure showmanship, or as being too absorbed in the cause as to be blind to the facts. We pointed out that the fight served no useful purpose and actually earned deals to be made which might prejudice other worthy projects.

In so doing we committed an injustice to Senator Paul Douglas, the recognized leader and guiding spirit of last year's hopeless effort. Today, a year later, it is clear that it was not useless, nor blind extremism, and not mere showmanship. The "hopeless" battle of a year ago did a great deal to set the political stage that now, in this election year, the leadership of both parties feels there is a political necessity to pass some civil rights legislation—especially Senator Lyndon Johnson who couldn't possibly be a presidential candidate unless he gets some such action on his record.

Sensor Douglas foresaw the possible effects of his seemingly pointless "showmanship" of a year ago—a positive and very practical result. What ever civil rights legislation comes from this Congress, Senator Douglas—although shut out from the deals being made at the top—will be more responsible for the fact that something was done than probably any other single man in Washington. He did it with a series of seemingly "pointless" battles—each of which built up the flame under the seats of key legislators a little hotter, until at last they are moving.

On this issue we misjudged the Senator—and Senator Paul Douglas was right in his actions as well as his motives.

Between Book Ends Window Through the Curtain

MAO TSE-TUNG AND I WERE BEGGARS, by Siao-yu. (Syracuse University Press, 266 pgs., $6.)

Few Westerners have ever penetrated beyond the personal bamboo curtain drawn around Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung. In a sense this opaqueness reveals itself also in the bamboo curtain drawn around Communist China. But both are penetrable, the latter perhaps more readily so and probably closer to realization than the former.

Nevertheless, Westerners have been given a window through which to understand a little about Mao, through Dr. Siao-yu's excellent picture of his early contacts with the boy who was later to move 600,000,000 of his fellow countrymen into the Communist camp.

Dr. Siao-yu, who is today director of the Sino-International Library in Montevideo, Uruguay, is a native of Hunan province in south central China—from which Mao comes. Both Siao and Mao were from poor farm families, their homes only a long day's walk apart. They met at the First Normal School in Changsha, the provincial capital, at the time of the Revolution in 1911-12.

For a full decade, the two were close—in a relationship that was at first of Mao's request. They became intimate friends and remained so until 1921 when Mao went off to join a group of incipient Communists, to form what became the Communist Party of China.

The pair continued to see each other, but after Mao's move to the Left in 1921, the same intimate relationship never again existed.

But Dr. Siao's book, "Mao Tse-tung and I Were Beggars," is a careful accounting of Mao's formative years by the one person who knew Mao most intimately. The begging episode, which lends itself to the title, occurred when Mao, still a student, and Siao, now a teacher in the local high school, set out on an adventure to learn more about the humble millions who inhabited Hunan. Not only humorous and witty, the account of this venture is informative for the light it sheds on Mao's character.

Here Mao sees and records on his mind the despair and plight of Hunan peasants. Not necessarily a turning point in Mao's career, but an adventure which further entrenched his determination to do something about their plight.

Reading Dr. Siao's account, one gets a vivid impression of Mao Tse-tung, the farm boy who is just embarking on a career in which his work and that of his associates will revolutionize China. Dr. Siao writes with understandable passion—for he went one way while Mao went another way, a way which Dr. Siao found intolerable. But this account is nevertheless a clear glimpse at Mao in those formative years.

DORIS FLEESON

Time for Johnson's Big Move

WASHINGTON. WITH THE CIVIL RIGHTS LEGISLATION in its final stages Senator Johnson of Texas, leader of the Senate Democratic majority, will move more openly into the presidential picture. How much he will be able to influence the final outcome of the convention remains to be seen. Some things are, however, self-evident.

One is that he automatically becomes the chief figure in the drive to prevent Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts from stampeding the convention into a first-ballot Kennedy nomination. It is Texas Johnson who has the bloc of about 400 Southern votes at Los Angeles which Kennedy has found no way to fragment or divide. And it is because Kennedy cannot now get the Southerners who showed such surprising friendliness toward him in the 1956 convention that he is obliged to campaign fiercely in the distressed area of West Virginia, in the Farm Belt and in the Pacific Northwest.

These are all places where his record on their special and particular interests seems somewhat ambiguous and must be countered by his great personal appeal.

Senator Smathers's View.

Kennedy perceived the Johnson threat months ago when all the Kennedy probings and feints in the South failed. Kennedy was unable, for example, to persuade his close friend, Senator Smathers, to withdraw as Florida's favorite son and enable him to fight it out there in public with Johnson. Smathers is also close to Johnson.

It is reliably understood that Smathers' attitude reflects both his divided personal loyalties and his conviction that the South and the country are not yet ready to elect a Catholic President. So he has left himself free to maneuver at Los Angeles.

Another obvious consequence of Johnson's more open candidacy for President is that debate regarding his leadership qualifications must shift ground. The Texan made his reputation here and it is still largely confined to Washington and the political trade. They discuss him in terms of his role as manager of the Senate's calendar and chief architect of its legislative product.

The Great Compromiser.

The verdict is that he is a brilliant political technician and a master of the art of legislative compromise.

Now they must ask themselves what they need and want in the next President, who will also be the leader of the free world. The strong Presidents of the United States have not compromised with Congress.

They have unified the country behind their own conviction of what the times require and, by doing so, forced upon Congress the political necessity of following them.

Civil Rights Plus Oil.

They have not hesitated to take unpopular stands and go down the line for them. They have rarely begun with compromise, even when they had to settle for it.

Johnson may have these creative talents, but it is not with them that he has built his Senate reputation. The Senate is a different forum altogether and works in vastly different ways than the White House.

Johnson, in the domestic issue field, is up against far more than civil rights, significant as that is to the important Negro minority in the pivotal states.

He has, perhaps necessarily as a Texas Senator, usually been found arrayed against what Senators call the big consumer states, especially when oil and gas are at issue. This is his most immediately vulnerable point, as his rivals will lose no time mentioning.

became widely known during and after World War II for his restorative surgery on wounded men of the Royal Air Force. Last year he removed a scar from the face of the Duchess of Windsor.

FLORISSANT CHARTER REVISION PROPOSED

City's Growth Makes It Pressing Problem, New Mayor Says.

An appointment of a 15-member citizens' committee to study possible revision of the Florissant city charter was proposed last night by the city's newly elected mayor, Henry F. Koch.

Koch made the suggestion at a meeting of the city council. Charter revision is one of the city's "most pressing" problems because of the rapid population growth in the last 10 years, he said. Members of the committee would be selected from lists submitted by city councilmen and the mayor.

Koch, the first full-time mayor for the city, also recommended that city officials undertake revision of the administrative branch of the city government for greater efficiency and ease of operation.

In particular, he urged greater departmentalization of administrative functions. He noted, for example, that the city clerk also serves as registrar and water commissioner, an arrangement which may be illegal.

In explaining his request for a charter revision committee, Koch said the city currently operates under a special charter. However, he said, state law regarding special charter cities is silent on cities with population over 30,000. The present city population is estimated at 42,000.

Other recommendations by the Mayor were establishment of a revolving fund for loans to citizens whose properties have been assessed for special improvements, the setting up of a council civic improvement committee to handle matters dealing with improvement of the city's buildings, parks and roads.

Koch announced the following appointments: Mrs. Margaret Bueter, city clerk; Thomas B. Walsh, chief of police; David Bartosch, city treasurer; and George Collier, building commissioner.

Robert J. Baine Jr. was appointed prosecuting attorney for the city, and the legal firm of Hough, Fox, Herrmann and Nichols was named special counsel. H. J. Timmerman was re-elected chairman of the council.

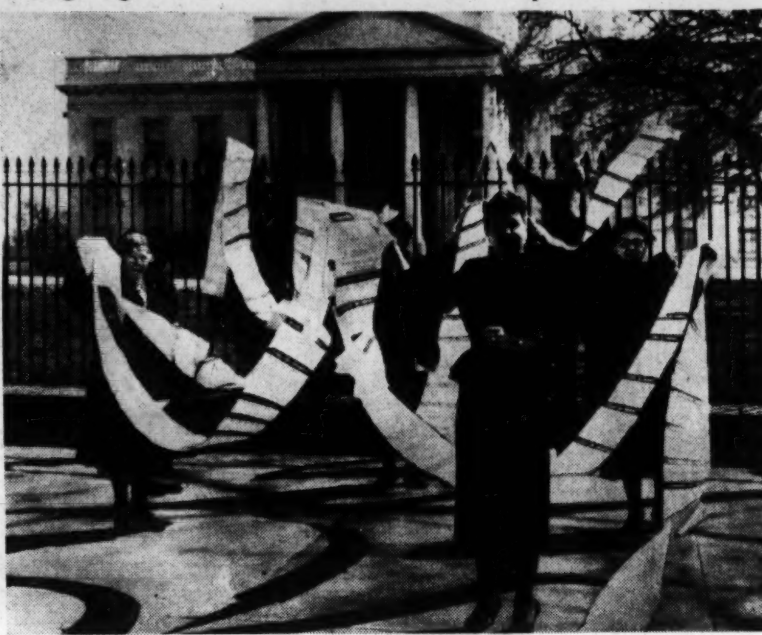

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR WILLIAM M. DUNCAN

Funeral services for William M. Duncan, president of the Duncan Foundry & Machine Works of Alton, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Morrow-Quinn undertaking establishment in Alton, with private burial in Alton City Cemetery.

Mr. Duncan, 87 years old, died of infirmities of age last night at St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton. A member of an old Alton family, Mr. Duncan entered the foundry business, established by his father, Gilbert Duncan, as a young man.

He also was vice president of the Litchfield & Madison Railroad and a former director of the Frisco Railroad. In the 1930s he was a member of the Illinois State Board of Fish and Game Advisers. His wife, the former Mary Drummond, died in 1945. He lived at 1714 State street, Alton. Surviving is a brother, George D. Duncan, secretary-treasurer of the foundry.

Urging Cancellation of Trip to Russia

Members of Citizens Congressional Committee in front of White House yesterday with 250-foot long petition of names of persons in every state urging President Eisenhower to cancel his June trip to the Soviet Union. A White House aid accepted the petition from MRS. OPAL TANNER WHITE of Hollywood, Calif. (foreground), chairman of the committee.

PERFORMANCES IN ALTON

BY GRAND OPERA GUILD

An operatic version of Offenbach's "The Tales of Hoffman" and a one-act opera, "Hello, Out There," by Jack Beeson, will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Saturday by the St. Louis Grand Opera Guild in the Alton Center Auditorium, 2809 College avenue.

The program will be part of the 1959-60 recital series of the Southwestern Illinois campus of Southern Illinois University. Singers in the Offenbach work will be Gerald Landon, Betty Pearson, Jeannette Willy, Jimmie Lee Caviness and Jay Wiloughby.

Virginia Perkins will be narrator and Dorothy Ziegler, musical director of the guild, will be at the piano. Beeson's opera will be a full production with a chamber orchestra, composed of members of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. MRS. MARION C. RUTHMAN FUNERAL SERVICES HELD

Funeral services for Mrs. Marion Clark Ruthman, a real estate dealer, were held yesterday at the Bopp undertaking establishment, 12 North Hanley road, Clayton, with burial in Oak Grove Cemetery.

Mrs. Ruthman, who was 63 years old, died Saturday of pneumonia at Deaconess Hospital. She and her husband, Herbert B. Ruthman, operated a real estate firm bearing her name for the past 20 years. Mrs. Ruthman lived at 14 Magnolia drive, Ladue.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, Robert Clark Hutchinson, 8943 Manchester road, Brentwood.

Lorenzo Cella Dies. NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—Lorenzo Cella, president of the Cella Vineyards of Fresno, Calif., and one of the founders of the Roma Wine Co., died of a heart attack Saturday. He was 73 years old.

NEW YORK V.I.P. PARADE FOR COLOMBIAN PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—The President of Colombia got the city's very important-person treatment yesterday and responded by claiming the city as his—"without harboring any imperialistic designs."

President Alberto Lleras Camargo was cheered and applauded as he rode up Broadway to City Hall, with ticketape and confetti showering from office buildings.

At a luncheon later at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, he suggested that Latin America's failure to achieve the same prosperity and social welfare as has the United States might result from "the fact that there have been deviations from the fundamental principles adopted by the founders of our nations."

"This city is not a monstrous accident of history," he said, "but the natural result of a way of life, a political philosophy persistently applied in order to promote human happiness in an atmosphere of freedom."

W. W. McLellan Dies. NEW YORK, April 12 (AP)—W. W. McLellan, founder and president of two chains of variety stores, died yesterday. He was 87 years old.

MRS. LELAND B. ALFORD'S FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Mrs. Leland B. Alford, widow of a St. Louis neurologist and psychiatrist, will be at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City. Burial will be in Vandalia, Mo.

Mrs. Alford, who was 76 years old, died of a stomach ailment Sunday at St. Luke's Hospital. She lived at 5638 Kingsbury place. Her husband, who died in 1937, was a faculty member at St. Louis University Medical School.

There are no immediate survivors.

J. W. MURPHY, OFFICIAL SENATE REPORTER, DIES

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—James W. Murphy, the Senate's official reporter and editor of its debates for nearly 65 years, died yesterday at the age of 83.

Mr. Murphy, a lawyer and shorthand expert, had followed in the footsteps of his father, Edward V. Murphy Sr., and two uncles, Dennis F. and James J. Murphy. It was Dennis Murphy who founded what is now known as the Congressional Record.

MARGARET TO TAKE 1662 VOW TO 'OBEY'

Princess Decides to Use Part of 298-Year-Old Prayer Book.

LONDON, April 12 (AP)—Princess Margaret has "deliberately" chosen a 298-year-old wedding vow to "obey" commoner Anthony Armstrong-Jones when she marries him on May 6 in Westminster Abbey.

The dean of Westminster, Dr. Eric S. Abbott, told a press conference today the introduction to the wedding ceremony would be taken from the Church of England's 1928 prayer book, but the central section would come from the prayer book of 1662.

"They feel the language of the 1662 vows is in every way deeper and richer than the 1928," said Dr. Abbott.

The ceremony will include no sermon, but the Princess and Armstrong-Jones have chosen the Beatitudes from the Sermon on the Mount (Matthew 5:3-11) as a Scripture reading.

The wedding will be solemnized by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, assisted by Dr. Abbott and the precentor of Westminster, the Rev. C. T. H. Dams.

Although the royal family as a rule does not receive divorced persons, the dean said the bridegroom's divorced parents would be in the abbey sanctuary with the royal family for the ceremony.

MRS. A. B. DU CORRON ESTATE INVENTORIED AT $412,335

The estate of Mrs. A. B. DuCorron, 4512 Westminster place, was valued at $412,335 in an inventory filed yesterday in probate court. She died Feb. 10 at the age of 80.

Principal assets of the estate included stocks valued at $211,601; bonds and notes, $180,518; and cash, $17,676. Bequests of $1000 each were left to the Wednesday Club, Second Presbyterian Church and the Salvation Army. $500 to the Little Sisters of the Poor and $4000 to friends and relatives.

Under terms of her will filed previously, one-fifth of the estate was left to Miss Mary C. Johnson, a grandniece, of 725 South Skinner boulevard; two-fifths to children of a deceased half-sister and one-fifth each to children of a deceased half-brother and a deceased nephew.

ORDER IS PLACED FOR $7000 MODEL OF MASTER PLAN

A $7000 table model of the master plan for downtown St. Louis has been ordered, Arthur F. Schwarz, chairman of the City Plan Commission, announced today.

The model, measuring 5½ by 9 feet, will show the pedestrian malls, central parkway, expressway loop, garages and other improvements proposed for redevelopment of the central business district. It will be built to scale, and will be so arranged that it can be altered to incorporate plan changes as they are made.

Downtown in St. Louis, Inc., contributed the money to pay for the model, which is being constructed by the firm of Callaghan & Seiler in Benton Harbor, Mich. City Planning Director John Poland and Mrs. Miriam W. Schmitt, senior planner who did a large part of the work on the master plan report, will go to Benton Harbor tomorrow to confer with the model builders.

"This model should prove a valuable sales instrument," Schwarz said. "It will enable the city to show potential developers how projects would fit into the over-all picture."

PREMIERE OF COMPOSITION

CARDINALS MEET PENNANT-FAVORED GIANTS IN OPENER

Jackson and Jones To Pitch First Game In New Frisco Park

By Bob Broeg

Post-Dispatch Sports Editor

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12—Candlestick Park, the majestic new stadium on San Francisco Bay, appeared today to have licked the hitters even before the first official pitch there.

A standing-room crowd of about 44,000, an audience that will include Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, Baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick, National League President Warren Giles, American League President Joe Cronin and other notables, was expected to watch the Cardinals meet the pennant-favored Giants at 3:30 this afternoon (St. Louis time).

Starting pitchers were to be righthanders Larry Jackson of St. Louis and Sam Jones of San Francisco. Both smiled when they saw the new ball park, which derives its name from Candlestick Point, when the clubs worked out yesterday afternoon.

The size and shape of the park, plus the effect of the wind blowing in and a poor batting background, made hitters moan during practice and promised to turn the new stadium into a home of low-scoring games.

"One Run Awfully Big," Redbird scout Eddie Stanky, his shoulders hunched as a nippy wind whipped up dust off the diamond, nudged former teammate Bill Rigney, the Giants' manager, and said:

"You've really got to manage in this park, Rig. One run can be awfully big."

Rigney nodded. "Yeah," he said, "this looks like a place where you'll have to bunt early and use the hit-and-run. It certainly figures to neutralize power, especially right-handed."

Solly Hemus, the Cardinals' manager, agreed with Rigney and Stanky that power-hitting would be difficult, especially with a wind blowing directly from Candlestick Point beyond center field.

Designed for Mays. "This is the park for Willie Mays to roam, all right," said Rigney, smiling. Willie, the effervescent wonder, wasn't happy, though, as he saw the wind turn back line drives to left. "Man," Mays exclaimed, "I'm in for a cut next fall unless I can convince the boss (Horace Stoneham) that I'm really a glove man."

Stan Musial, though annoyed at the poor batting background, suggested with a thin smile that Mays might run off with the honors in doubles and triples even if his home-run total suffered.

"This is a lovely place," Musial said, sweeping his hand toward the double-decked park with upper stands virtually roofless. "But, just as at Milwaukee, the architect, engineers, contractors—none of 'em—bothered to consult the men who earn their bread and butter here. The batting background is terrible."

It is, too. Puny juniper trees in center field offer neither the height nor width necessary to keep the pitcher's arm from seeming to come out of a distracting hillside of multi-colored houses. "And at night it'll be even worse," Musial said, "because of lights from the parking lot and from the homes."

Cunningham Gropes. Outfielders chasing fly balls were troubled by the wind during the dress rehearsal and, in addition, a strong afternoon sun cutting into right field made things extremely difficult. Joe Cunningham, switching from one shade of sun glasses to a smokier pair, still couldn't fight off the glare and lost several flies.

"Reminds you of the left field sun at Yankee Stadium, only worse," said Hemus.

Because of the spacious field and tricky wind currents, Hemus said he hoped for an early lead that would enable him to go as quickly as possible to his defensive unit.

With a big outfield and fast infield through which grounders skipped, Stanky said the new park put a premium on traditional down-the-middle defense. Rigney and Hemus concurred.

Jackson, a sinker ball pitcher, said the fast infield made him hope to be able to get more batters to hit the ball into the air here. "But Sam," the Redbird pitcher said of his former teammate and opening-day opponent, "has the best pitch for any park—the strikeout."

Humor wasn't lost, you see, despite the disturbing hitting outlook and the cut eyebrow Coach Johnny Keane suffered when struck by his own fungo bat while ducking a wild throw in practice.

Parading across the bright carpeted floor of the large, airy visitors' clubhouse, Capt. Ken Boyer cracked:

"They beat us 16 out of 22 the last two years at Seals Stadium. No wonder they rolled out the red rug for us in the new ball park."

Pointer Is Victor in Open Stake

Farmer's Secret Weapon won the Missouri Open Championship Stake of the Missouri State Field Trial Association at Busch Wildlife area, Weldon Spring, yesterday.

The male pointer is owned by Peter Lusardi Sr. of Somerville, N.J., and was handled by Phil Brousseau of Kline, S.C.

The victory meant $1500 for Lusardi and a rotating trophy furnished by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Second place, worth $500, went to City Editor, a pointer male owned by Bill Lavin of Girard, Ohio, and handled by Lee Hoffman of Lagrange, Tenn.

The winner wasted no time in displaying the form that earned the title. He took only 15 minutes to point a covey in a ditch in midfield and was ordered picked up by Judges Walter Wimmer of Rockville, Ind., and Wade Garner of Amite, La.

Farmer's Secret Weapon was one of eight dogs called back when the judges were unable to select a winner Sunday.

E. St. Louis Boxer Defeated in AFB Championship Event

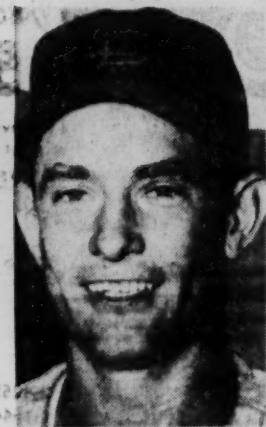

LANGLEY AIR FORCE BASE, Va., April 12 (AP).—Two defending champions scored quick technical knockouts last night as the worldwide Air Force boxing tournament began its four-day run.

George McCorkle of Bolling Air Force Base, reigning titlist in the 165-pound division, needed only 57 seconds of the third round to dispose of his third-round foe, Dennis Adamschek of Seaford Springs Air Force Station, N. Y., on a technical knockout.

James L. Richardson of Fuchu Air Force Base, Japan, made an even more impressive start toward retaining his 139-pound title by stopping Charles F. Clay of Thule AFB, Greenland, at 1:46 of the first round.

In the 132-pound class, Clarence Trotter of East St. Louis, representing Hill AFB of Utah, was defeated by Charles B. Russell of Incheol AFB, Michigan. The tournament finals are scheduled for Thursday.

Trades and Musial's Comeback Give Birds First Division Ideas

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12—

The Cardinals' players, polled on the eve of the National League season, predicted a climb from seventh place to the first division this year, largely basing their belief on better punch and pitching, plus the encouraging return to form of Stan Musial.

Players were asked: (1) whether they thought the club was better; (2) if so, why; and (3) where they thought the Cardinals could finish.

Holdover members replied this way:

CAPT. KEN BOYER: "Lots stronger than last year. Pitching was impressive this spring. Not much doubt we'll score runs. Musial should make a big difference. He's swinging the bat like he did in 1957. We've got a good shot for fourth."

LINDY McDANIEL: "Yes, better because of run production mainly and a little stronger in pitching. First division, I'd say."

BILL WHITE: "Oh, yeah, a lot stronger. We're got more confidence in ourselves. I know I have. Kline is going to help. Spencer, Wagner and Nieman, too. We came out on the 'plus' side in our trades. A good start would be important. I don't know where we'll finish, but we've had just as good a club as the teams we've played so far."

HAL SMITH: "Yeah, I sure do think we're better. Got more power for one thing and will score more runs. I think our pitching is better, too. Think we ought to finish in the first division."

ALEX GRAMMAS: "Sure, better. We ought to score many more runs and the addition of Kline should help our pitching. He's in better shape than when he was in Pittsburgh. Club as a whole is in better condition. If Stan continues to swing the bat as he has, we should at least be somewhere in the first division."

JOE CUNNINGHAM: "Uh-huh, getting Ronnie Kline makes our pitching stronger. Getting Spencer, Wagner, Nieman and Sawatski makes our hitting better. I think we've got a good chance to finish higher than the experts figure (sixth)—if our pitchers come through."

WILMER MIZELL: "Yes, I really do. I believe for the first time in a couple of years we're ready to move up. We're going to score runs. When we get ahead, we've got defensive men to go in. Pitching is better, too. Don't see how anybody can pick us out of the first division. And if the race is as close as last time, anything could happen."

WALLY SHANNON: "Oh, definitely better. Got a lot more power and the pitching is better. Depth in power now and Solly can run his defense in there. I think we've got a real good chance to finish fourth—at least. Stan will help us a lot. He's given us a mental boost already."

ERNE BROGLIO: "Yeah. Heck, the power of the top of the batting order alone will provide more runs early to enable us to get our defense in there. Flood and Burton close the gap. Real good chance to finish in the money. A whole lot depends on Stan—if he can hit as he has this spring."

BOB MILLER: "Oh, yeah, very much better. More depth and more hitting. Maybe a pitcher shouldn't say this, but I believe the pitching is better, too. We've got the winning feeling and that's something you've got to have. Finish? First division."

GEORGE CROWE: "Yes, because we won more in the spring and because the young fellows have more experience and the trades have helped. A good start makes a better ball club. We could finish anywhere up there."

STAN MUSIAL: "Oh, yeah, the club is a lot stronger. We've got the long ball. We'll score more. We've got better bench strength and we added a pitcher (Kline). Hard to say where we can finish, haven't we? We could finish third or fourth, even higher. Something tells me this is going to be a strange year, that there's going to be some dramatic climbs and maybe dips in the standings."

Lincoln Scratched From Two Stakes

SAN MATEO, Calif., April 12 (AP)—Lincoln, upset winner of the recent Santa Anita Handicap, suffered a small bone fracture in his left front leg in his latest outing and will be out of action for at least a month.

Trainer H. C. McBride said Lincoln was injured during the running of the City of Stockton Purse at Bay Meadows here last Friday. Surgery is scheduled within the next two days.

Lincoln was declared out of Saturday's $20,000-added Governor's Handicap and also will be unable to race in the $40,000-added William P. Kyne Memorial Handicap, May 16.

Electric Machine To Be Knockdown Timekeeper In Fullmer-Giardello Bout

BOZEMAN, Mont., April 12 (AP)—Champion Gene Fullmer and challenger Joe Giardello won't have to worry about a long or short count in their middleweight title fight here April 20.

If either is knocked to the canvas, an electronic machine will be used to do the counting.

It's known as an electronic knockdown timekeeper, a machine which lights up showing the number of seconds a fighter has been down. This will be the first time such a machine has been used in a championship scrap.

The device is mounted on the ring and operates like a basketball scoreboard, flashing seconds on a large board. The machine automatically takes a photograph of the KO'd fighter when the count reaches 10.

McMillan Hits First Home Run

The National League baseball season opened this afternoon with two games. In one the Milwaukee Braves opposed the Pittsburgh Pirates at Milwaukee before a crowd estimated at 40,000. In the other the Philadelphia Phillies played the Cincinnati Reds at Cincinnati with an estimated 31,000 in attendance.

Warren Spahn, veteran left-hander, was the starting pitcher for the Braves against the Pittsburgh ace, Bob Friend.

Spahn had a 21-5 record last season while Friend won 8 and lost 19.

Four rookies started for the Phillies. There were Tony Curry in right field, Frank Herrera at second base, Bobby Del Greco, another former Cardinal, in center field and Jim Coker behind the plate.

Shortstop Roy McMillan of the Reds, who hit 9 home runs last season, hit the first home of the 1960 campaign today in the second inning. Two men were on base when he connected against Roberts.

Collinsville, E. St. Louis, Granite Win League Contests

U. City Blanked By Ladue

Home runs by Bob Bettoville and Robert Simpson enabled Collinsville to open its Southwestern Illinois Conference baseball campaign with a 3-1 victory over the host Alton nine yesterday. East St. Louis' Flyers defeated Wood River, 5-2, on the Oilers' field and Granite City downed the visiting Edwardsville team, 10-3, in other league games.

Bettoville's four-bagger scored Bart Basola for Collinsville's two runs in the second inning and Simpson's home run in the fifth came with none on. It was Alton's first league games.

East St. Louis picked up a run in the first and then three in the fourth on two hits, an error and a hit bats man before concluding with another run in the sixth.

Four Hits for Price.
Bob Price had four singles in five trips to the plate to help with the Granite City victory. Five pitchers were used by both teams in the seven-inning contest.

The Suburban Big 10 race opened with Ladue defeating University City, 4-0, on the winner's diamond. Two Ladue hurlers, Robert Fischman, who was relieved in the sixth, and Fred Anthony, held the Indians to one hit, a single by Bruce Seigel.

Steve Jansen's single scored Steve Rosenthal, who doubled to start the third inning, and Anthony's triple drove in two more runs to end Ladue's first rally. Robert Kolbrenner's hit scored Monty Gast for a run in the sixth inning.

Don Florine Fans 15.
Don Florine struck out 15 batters to help Civic Memorial of Bethalto beat Madison, 5-2, in a Midwestern Conference game at Bethalto. Sam Georgeff of Madison got three hits, including two doubles. Florine allowed five hits.

Litchfield won its second straight Mid-State Conference game by defeating the host Pana nine, 8-1. Four hits, a walk and a sacrifice hit scored two runs for Litchfield in the third. One hit and three errors produced three runs in the fourth and Larry Shoop doubled in the sixth to score two more tallies. Scott Honefenger's double in the fourth gave Pana its lone run.

Wellston defeated Hazelwood, 7-2, in a North County League game on the loser's field. The winners started with two runs in the third and then made four runs in the fifth on three hits, including a double by Turner. Hunziker hit a two-run homer in the sixth for Hazelwood.

Steelers Get Johnson
DETROIT, April 12 (AP)—Old Detroit Lions never die, they just go to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The latest to join the Lion Alumni Club in Pittsburgh is Fullback John Henry Johnson.

Detroit traded Johnson to Pittsburgh yesterday for the top Steeler draft choice in 1961 and 1962.

DANI, CARL GENTILE, TIM KNOX, TERRY KNOX and TOM DIX. Not present was Jerry Strange. Hough is the only member of the present team who played for St. Paul in 1958. Secretary Knox is the father of twins, Tim and Terry. The age limit in Junior soccer is 18 at the start of the season.

Ritenour set the pace by qualifying 26 athletes in the junior and senior divisions of the Huskies' invitational track and field meet. Additional trials will be held today in preparation for tomorrow's 4 p.m. finals.

Clem Buschmann of Ritenour led the senior qualifiers by placing first in the 100-yard dash and broad jump events. Ritenour had 14 seniors qualifiers, Normandy 9, St. Charles 8, Wellston 5, and Pattonville 5. Junior division: Ritenour 12, Normandy 7, St. Charles 5, Pattonville 4, Wellston 2.

Track Dates Changed For Boxing Events

NEW YORK, April 12 (UPI)—Three major indoor track meets will be held on Friday nights at Madison Square Garden next year.

To accommodate producers of a new series of nationally-televized (ABC) Saturday night boxing shows at the Garden, sponsors of the Millrose, New York A.C. and Knights of Columbus meets have consented to Friday night dates for their 1961 championships.

The Millrose games will be held, Feb. 3, the New York A.C. meet, Feb. 17, and the K. of C. meet, March 3.

The A.A.U. and ICA-A indoor championships will be decided on their customary Saturday night dates. The A.A.U. meet is set for Feb. 25 and the ICA-A championships for March 11.

a revolutionary new shoe idea: the Roma

If anybody knows how to design an elegant, expensive shoe that's light as a feather, it's the Italians. And if anybody knows how to make that shoe to American tastes for just $9.99, it's Thom McAn. The Roma is not just a new shoe style, it's a whole new way of making shoes. It feels as if it didn't have a bone in its body, yet it gives your foot excellent support and holds its shape like a brogue. And that light continental sole will outwear twice its weight in heavy looking soles. It's prime outersole through and through. Bears Play Missouri At Columbia

By Harold Tuthill

Washington U. will slip down to Columbia today for an afternoon baseball game with a University of Missouri team that is certain to be hopping mad after its triple Big Eight loss to Oklahoma State.

The Tigers are 2-5 this spring and they're not that bad. But last weekend they couldn't back surprisingly good pitching with a sustained attack against the Cowboys from Stillwater. In the three-game series the usually heavy hitting Tiger team got 20 hits and only four runs.

Oklahoma State made eight runs on 24 hits as it won, 4-3, 2-1 and 2-0.

Mizou's Hi Simmons probably will start Bobby Jenkins against the Bears, although the pitchers who worked Saturday's double-header probably are ready. They include Jim Russell, Dave Koch, Bobby Payne and Ronnie Goodwin.

Washington coach Irv Utz was uncertain just who will start for the Bears as they try to improve upon a 2-4 campaign after salvaging the final of a three-game set with Bradley.

Fred Blasberg beat the Braves from Peoria, 7-2, after Washington dropped 18-1 and 13-8 games to Bradley. Utz most likely will save Blasberg for Saturday's meeting with St. Louis University and give this starting assignment to one of the secondary pitchers.

Blasberg has held the opposition to three runs, one earned, in 21 innings.

Chuck Harmon, Ron Parker or Howard Johnson may face the Tigers. Johnson, although touched for four runs, all unearned, looked pretty good in the three innings he worked in the 18-1 contest with Bradley. He yielded just two hits and walked one.

St. Louis U. likewise will be trying to overcome a sorry weekend. Jerry Del Gaudio's Billkens lost three in a tournament at Quincy as Larry Scherer was beaten by Western Illinois, 3 to 2, in 11 innings; Dave Luechtefeld was charged with the 10-1 loss to Illinois and John Jones was tagged with the 5-2 defeat by host Quincy.

The three-ply setback dropped the Billkens to 1-3 as they prepared for a Southern excursion the next few days. They play at Murray (Ky.) College tomorrow, at Memphis State Thursday, and at Arkansas State, Jonesboro, Friday.

Neither Concordia Seminary nor Harris is scheduled to play this week.

Judo May Be Added To Olympic Program

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, April 12 (AP)—Otto Mayer, chancellor of the International Olympic Committee, said today there is an "excellent chance" judo would be included among the events in the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

"As the games are being held in Japan it would be a very good thing to include judo in the official events," Mayer said. "It would not be necessary to retain it in subsequent Olympic Games."

Judo never has been a part of the Olympic program but the organizing committee of the Tokyo Games planned to include it as a "demonstration" in 1964.

Mayer said the Tokyo organizing committee would have to make formal application for recognition of judo as an Olympic sport at the I.O.C. meeting in Rome in August.

"I see no reason why the application should be rejected," Mayer added.

Chapis Bowls 846 In Collinsville Meet

Dennis Chapis moved into second place in the scratch division of the $18,000 Fairmont Bowl tournament with a score of 846 for his four games in the event at Collinsville. Ken Wallis moved into a tie with Jim Vrecek for third place with an 844. Lee Steiger leads with 860.

Still in front in the handicap division is Carl Roman, of Staunton, with 906. Pete Santagato and Andy Duvarado share the runner-up spot with 893. Top prize in both the scratch and handicap divisions is $1200. The meet will continue until May 29.

O'Dells Clinch Crown In Herman League

The O'Dells, who bowled the second highest game of the American Bowling Congress tournament at Toledo last Sunday when they totaled 1103 in their 28th series, clinched the title in the Cone Herman League last night.

A 3-0 victory over the Thummers put the O'Dells 10 games ahead with just nine remaining. Jerry Maloy had 845 and Wally O'Dell, 641 to lead the winners.

Other results: Roncaro (Joe Caito 689), 3, Vita-Cee 1; Sun Crest 2, South Side Businessmen 1; Palm Bowl 2, Pepsi Cola 1.

U.S. AGAIN SEEKS SPACE PACT BUT RED REJECTS IT

GENEVA, April 12 (AP)—The Western powers called on the Soviet Union again today to join in negotiation of a permanent bar on weapons of mass destruction in outer space. They drew a Russian rebuff.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin told the 10-nation disarmament conference last week the Russians will agree to bar space weapons only when the United States abandons its foreign bases. He rejected an appeal by United States Ambassador Fredrick M. Eaton to keep outer space free of nuclear-armed vehicles by a simple control agreement between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Italy's Gen. Luigi Danielli repeated the suggestion at the twenty-first session of the deadlocked conference today. He challenged Zorin's argument that the West wants to bar space weapons only to nullify what the Russians consider is a Soviet military advantage in this field.

Zorin's unfavorable comparison between Russian and American progress in space is not borne out by the facts, the Italian said. He recalled that the United States has launched 20 space vehicles, of which nine are still in orbit, whereas only three Soviet satellites and three space probes had been reported.

He urged Zorin to reconsider his refusal and suggested, on behalf of all five Western delegations, that the conference set up a committee of space experts to discuss the problem.

A Soviet delegation spokesman, Alexei A. Roschin, dismissed Danielli's proposal as "of no consequence."

Poland's Prof. M. Lach's hinted that the Soviet bloc might soon announce abandonment of its four-year time limit for total world disarmament, presenting the move as a major Soviet concession.

Eaton promptly authorized an American delegation press statement asserting that "the Soviet Union is fully aware—as we have always been—of the impracticability of such a provision."

"If the Soviet delegation attempted to present that move as a big concession to the West," the statement said, "we would like to point out now that it would not be a concession to our viewpoint, but a concession to logic and the abandonment of a concept in which we are sure the Soviet delegation never seriously believed."

BILL PREPARED TO AID WIDOWS OF NAVY BANDSMEN

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee, said yesterday he had drafted legislation to provide aid for families of the 19 Navy bandsmen who died in an air crash Feb. 25 over Rio de Janeiro.

Kefauver said he understood the widows and children of the bandsmen had been "left in serious financial difficulties." He said he would not introduce the measure until after two House committees investigate the tragedy.

Kefauver put into the Congressional Record a statement signed by 13 widows of the bandsmen that the men would have taken out insurance for the flight from Argentina to Brazil had they been given any opportunity. Some of the men did not know they were going on this flight until Feb. 24, the statement said. It said the widows had been told the men asked for insurance but were told it was not available.

MILITARY MANUALS TO STICK TO SUBJECT, PRICE REPORTS

WASHINGTON, April 12 (AP)—The chairman of a House investigating committee said yesterday he had been assured that the Armed Services would keep their manuals within the bounds of genuine military interest.

Representative Melvin Price (Dem., Illinois, said his special investigating subcommittee will probably decide next week when to issue a report. The inquiry group was created after Air Force manuals which went into such subjects as dog wifening and possible Communist infiltration of the clergy had stirred up a storm in Congress.

Price said the subcommittee did not plan further hearings.

RULING SOUGHT ON COMMITTEE TERMS

Attorney General John M. Dalton was asked today to rule on whether incumbent members of the St. Louis county Democratic and Republican central committees are entitled to retain their offices for another two years, or if they must seek re-election this year.

The ruling was requested by the St. Louis County Election Board because of confusion over a 1959 state law, which extended the term of the county political committee members from two to four years. The new law also increased the filing fee from $5 to $100.

Due to an apparent error, the law provides that party committee members shall be elected to the new four-year terms in "1956" and every four years thereafter.

The law did not go into effect until last August. Some incumbent committee members, who were elected in 1958, contend their terms were automatically extended to four years and that they do not have to run again until 1962. Other candidates argue that the new four-year committee terms do not begin until new members are elected this year.

Joe Oxenhandler, election board chairman, said the board has been accepting the filings of candidates for committee-man and committeewoman from the various townships, believing the committee election would have to be held again this year at the August primary. It decided to ask for the Attorney General's ruling after the controversy arose.

The new law was proposed in the 1959 Legislature by Representative Robert A. Young of St. Louis county, who is Democratic committeeman of Airport township. He re-introduced a bill previously defeated in the Legislature, which sought to set up the four-year committee terms beginning in 1956.

Young's bill passed last session without the 1956 date being changed to 1960, which would have avoided the present legal snarl.

FOUR ON CUBAN PLANE SEEK POLITICAL REFUGE IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., April 12 (AP)—A Cubana Airlines crew landed in Miami on a regular run today then asked for political asylum. The three men, joined by one passenger, said the Cuban government was infiltrated by Communism and they wanted no part of it.

Fifteen other passengers, 11 aliens and four United States citizens, were unaware of their plans in the Havana-Miami flight.

The crew was greeted by Eduardo Whitehouse, Cuba's civil aviation chief under the ousted Batista dictatorship. He said he had a hunch the defectors were en route.

The refugees were Gonzalo Herrera, pilot; Francisco Monnar, purser; Pedro Montero, copilot, and Angel Lopez, the passenger.

4 MEXICANS FATALLY SHOT

CORDOBA, Mexico, April 12 (AP)—Two outlaws, long wanted by police, fatally wounded two municipal guards and were themselves killed in a fight on Cordoba's main street yesterday. Two other persons were wounded.

The guards, Quintin Ordinal and Guadalupe Gomez, as part of a campaign to confiscate all illegal sidearms, attempted to search Manuel Pelayo and Eugenio Mora, who shot the guards and were in turn killed by the dying guards.

5 AT WESTMINSTER COLLEGE FINED IN SHOOTING INCIDENT

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.

FULTON, Mo., April 12—Five Westminster College freshmen were fined $50 each and given 10-day suspended jail sentences yesterday as the result of a shooting incident last Thursday. James Adkisson III of Tulsa, Okla., another freshman, was wounded accidentally by a shot fired from a rifle belonging to Allen Fahrenkrog, 14 High Acres drive, Olivette. The students were engaging in target practice at a strip mine pit.

Those fined and sentenced in police court, in addition to Fahrenkrog, were Jack Higgins, St. Louis; Jay Teutenberg and Mike Swank, Webster Groves, and Robin Dodsworth, New York. They were charged with discharging firearms within the city. Adkisson, who is in a Columbia hospital, is charged with the same offense.

Belgian Congo Leader Killed.

BRUSSELS, April 12 (AP)—Tshimanga, a leader of the Belgian Congo's National Progress party, was killed by political opponents while campaigning in Kasai province last weekend, it was reported today. The Belgian news agency Belga said Tshimanga's party was attacked and he died on his way to a hospital.

ECONOMY PROVED IN MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!

CORVAIR
BY CHEVROLET DRIVE IT!
GET OUR DEAL!!!!

A pair of Corvairs recently recorded 27.03 and 26.21 miles per gallon in the 2,061.4-mile Mobilgas Economy Run. That's certified proof that Corvair skimps on gas costs. It saves other ways, too. Corvair is the only U.S. compact car that never needs antifreeze or costly radiator repairs. It's also the only one that provides the superb traction of a rear-engine design or the supple riding qualities of 4-wheel independent suspension. Come in and drive the compact car that outdoes them all.

Look at all the things Corvair gives you that America's other compact cars can't...

PRACTICALLY FLAT FLOOR . . . front and rear. Room for your feet, even if you're sitting in the middle. Who but Corvair remembers your feet?

FOLD-DOWN REAR SEAT . . . that opens 17.6 cubic feet of storage space besides what's in the trunk. Standard in every model, two- and four-door.

FOUR-WHEEL INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION . . . that gives each wheel its own coil spring and its own knee action. RESULT: a smoother, flatter ride.

ALMOST INSTANT HEAT . . . from an airplane-type heater. You don't have to wait for the engine to warm up—Corvair's heater warms in 30 seconds. Optional at extra cost.

NO FUSSING WITH ANTIFREEZE . . . or water or radiator repairs or water pumps. Corvair's air-cooled engine has nothing to do with 'em.

REAR-ENGINE TRACTION . . . that comes with the engine's weight bearing down on the rear wheels. Why be a stick in the mud (or snow or slush) with anything else when you can dig in and go with Corvair?

You probably realize already that the mileage figures Corvairs recorded in the Mobilgas Economy Run are higher than the average driver can expect. In this kind of event, the men behind the wheel are strictly pros, but because the run was conducted under all kinds of driving conditions—rugged mountains, long country straightaways, congested city traffic—those mileage figures prove very definitely Corvair's inherent ability to save. So you can see how operating costs take a nose dive the day you take delivery of a Corvair.

Front Line Pressure

High pressure hoses put strain on firemen fighting blaze in chemical plant storehouse at Norwood, O., yesterday. Blaze flared when shelves collapsed, sending highly combustible material crashing to the floor. By the time the fire was brought under control several hours later the building was in ruins and stocks of more than 4000 different chemicals were destroyed. Officials of the Matheson Co., Inc., estimated the loss would be more than $1,000,000.

Tense Time In Tennessee

Waving shovel in menacing manner, Sam Haislip, city employee at Nashville, warns Negro student to "keep off my grass" in demonstration in the Tennessee capital's Memorial square yesterday. Picket was one of a group of students continuing the protest against segregated lunch counters in the South. Another picket, a white divinity student at Vanderbilt University was pushed by an onlooker in the day's only violence. Both were arrested on peace disturbance charges.

Roundup Time In South Africa

South African policemen, in helmets and carrying clubs, form cordon around the slum settlement of Cato Manor at start of raid against government foes Sunday. More than 1000 soldiers backed the 600 policemen who swept through the settlement, seizing weapons and arresting the agitators and "gangsters" who are leading the resistance to the government's white supremacy laws.

Ushering in New Church Era

Margit Sahlin, doctor of philosophy and bachelor of divinity, wears the newly designed garb in which she and two other women are making clerical history in Sweden. Their consecration rites, at three different churches in Stockholm Sunday, marked the first time women have been ordained ministers in Sweden's Lutheran State Church. Diehard opposition to the women ministers is being organized by some male clerics.

Taking the U.S. In Stride

Bringing the walking fad now current in Britain to the United States, British Army Sgt. Mervyn Evans (left rear) and R.A.F. Flight Sgt. Patrick Maloney step off on start of transcontinental hike at San Francisco's Golden Gate bridge today. They are preceded by Sgt. Roy Rogers who will follow his mates in an automobile to their New York destination. The Britons hope to reach New York in 70 days, averaging 47 miles a day. The old record of 79 days was set from New York to San Francisco in 1926.

Stan Delaplane New Car but It's Not Like Model-T

SAN FRANCISCO, April 12.

A SMALL CHUNK of unexpected money dropped on me the other day. (It didn't hurt a bit. Just a few bruises.) I put a flower in my buttonhole and went right out and bought a new car. The Last of the Big-Time Spenders.

One thing I have found about holding on to money, it simply gets you a lot of grief.

If you have so much as a savings account, people tell you what to do with it.

"There's this plan, see? Like you invest in blue chips only on THIS you get DOUBLE your money."

Or they say: "I had my money in a bank in 1929." And they give you a sorrowful, knowing look.

Or they say: "It's all right to save. But how do you know what the dollar will be worth a couple of years from now? Look what's happened in the last five years."

I did not put my money in the bank. I did not even tell my Money Man about it—the Money Man straightens out your affairs; if you tell him you have a sawbuck, he will want to give you back only cigarette change. I did not put the money in the village jug. I went down and bought a big, long, bright, beautiful car. Convertible.

Oh, me, oh, my, dear! The call of the open road in April. The last car I bought (for cash, that is) cost me $35. That is how long it is since I was solvent enough to make cash deals.

It was a Model-T—secondhand, naturally. I thought all Model-T Fords were second hand because I never had a new one.

I got this $35 secondhand car for cash and I paid in gold. I had just signed off a ship that paid off in gold coin.

I gave the man two $20 gold pieces. He gave me back five silver dollars.

I drove that car right out of the lot. Twenty miles down the road the radiator cap blew off from steam pressure and a back tire went flat.

If such a thing happened with my new car, I would take it back to the man and be pretty mad.

But these things were expected in a Model-T. We did not expect perfection. We were resourceful.

The radiator cap blew because the radiator leaked water. It got too hot. When that happened, we bought a can of stuff that looked like sawdust. We poured it in the radiator with some water. It boiled up. Looked a good deal like oatmeal. It plugged the leaks.

A flat tire was nothing. We took the tire off the wheel and pried it off the rim. We took the tube and blew it up. We stuck it in water to see where the bubbles came from.

Then we got out a can of patch and cut a small patch. The top of the can was rough like a grater. We scraped the grater over the hole. Put a little sticky goop from a tube on it. Stuck on the patch.

I drove that Model-T for a hundred miles. It took me a day and a half. But by the time I got there, the car was in perfect working order.

It should have been. I rebuilt it en route.

I put in a new bearing—the front bearing always went out sometimes on a Model-T. (It could be replaced temporarily with a thick piece of bacon rind if you had to.)

I put in a new needle valve in the carburetor. I tinkered with the fan belt which was loose as a child's tooth. I didn't care. It was MY car.

Later years I saved my money in the approved fashion. I financed my cars. They did not belong to me. They belonged to the bank. And I quit repairing them with the old affection. I should fix somebody else's car.

Ann Landers Bed Smoking Problem

Dear Ann Landers:

YOU ARE MY LAST HOPE. What can I do about a husband who smokes in bed?

Dave wakes up several times during the night and must have a cigarette. There are holes in the scarf of the night table, the bed sheets, pillow cases and even in his pajamas. I find ashes in the bed every morning and this messes the sheets something terrible. There are always ashes on the floor.

I've asked him nicely to please go to the bathroom and smoke if he must. It's only a few feet away. He gets mad when I mention this so I've tried remaining silent thinking he might change "on his own" but it's not one bit better.

Please suggest an effective way to handle this problem.

THIRD ALARM.

Dear Third Alarm: Tell Dave that one of these mornings the ashes on the floor could be his own. Every year hundreds of people are burned to death because they think these hideous accidents happen only to others—not to them.

If he insists on continuing this suicidal practice, protect yourself by buying twin beds and outfitting his bed with asbestos-treated sheets and pillow cases.

Get a table topped with formica (fireproof). Keep a fire extinguisher in the corner and the phone number of the fire department posted over his bed.

Dear Ann Landers:

I HAVE TWO SONS who are as different as night and day. The older boy, Hank, is 16, a leader in school activities and sports, loves people and is very popular. He always has a gang of kids over and seems to be getting a lot of fun out of life.

His brother, Paul, will be 15 in May. He's shy, introverted and the lone-wolf type. He has a couple of friends who are also quiet and studious, but he hardly ever gets a phone call.

Paul is interested in poetry, science and math. His grades are tops and he has won several academic honors.

I'm worried about him because all he wants to do is read, haunt libraries and art galleries or museums. It seems unnatural for a boy his age to be so ingrown. The contrast between Paul and Hank is so great it concerns me deeply. What do you suggest?

MOTHER OF SONS

Dear Mother: Your sons have different personalities and interests. Respect their individuality. There's no reason for them to be carbon copies of one another.

I see no cause to worry about a boy who makes top grades, likes art galleries, libraries and museums. Not all kids have magnetic personalities that draw crowds—and maybe that's good.

Parents who want their children to be popular are usually trying to relive their own lonely childhood. Leave Paul alone. He may be happier than gregarious, out-going Hank.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

He Spent 10 Years on 'The Longest Day'

Author Cornelius Ryan Interviewed 700 Persons to Get Full D-Day Story, Hit Best-Seller Jackpot

By Jack Rice

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff

THE NEWLY-NOTED AUTHOR, Cornelius Ryan, was nervous. He placed his hands firmly on the table, apparently suspicious they would fidget with the silverware unless closely watched. He swallowed like a man taking aspirin without water. Then he began to speak, addressing his words to his coffee cup. Ryan said he doesn't like to be interviewed. As a long-time member of the working press, he feels like a man talking to himself, at best. At worst, he feels presumptuous.

Ryan told the coffee cup that he doesn't think a writer has any business bringing himself into play with the spoken word. A writer should put everything he has to say into writing and then crawl back into his typewriter, sparing the public the sight and sound of himself.

Listening to himself talk to the coffee cup, Ryan started to grin. He was thinking about all the reluctant men he had interviewed. Ryan abandoned the coffee cup as an audience.

"I can't tell you," he said, "how this book has changed my life. I can't get 'The Longest Day' off my back. I'm the most amazed, stunned guy in the world. The problems it's brought me are—wonderful."

Money is not one of the problems. Maybe the taxes will be a problem but the money isn't. Within four and one-half months "The Longest Day" has sold 80,000 copies in the United States. A representative of the publishers, Simon and Schuster, said that makes it a "genuine best-seller." The publishing trade can make adjustments in English as nicely as any other salesman. A book that sells 20,000 to 25,000 is a best-seller, real enough. Over that, the best-seller is not only real, it's "genuine."

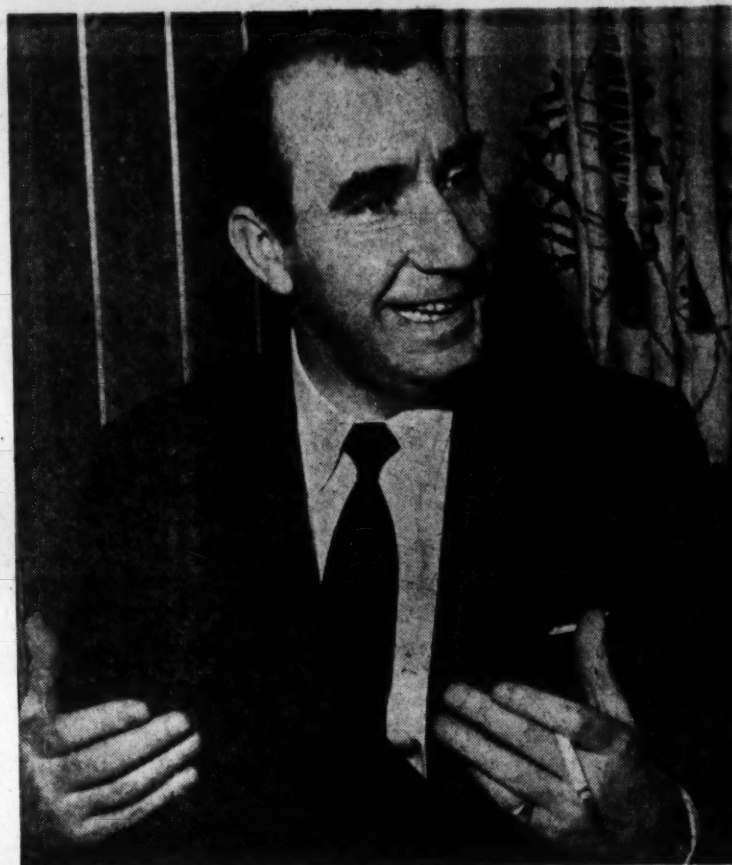

"The Longest Day" has an advance sale of 22,000 in England. The first-printing order in France is 35,000. The paperback rights have been sold for $75,000, the highest paid for a non-fiction book. A French producer bought the movie rights for "a sum in six figures." Ryan considered the exact six figures indecently high to mention. He considered the advance sale in England almost indecently shocking, the most unlikely, un-British action an Irish-born man such as himself could contemplate. At the age of 38, Ryan must start all over to appraise the British reputation for mass conservatism.

"It's enough to make one think objectivity does pay off," Ryan said.

Objectivity never has paid off before on Ryan's subject. Ryan's book covers one day in a war, the specific and unequalled day of June 6, 1944, D-Day at Normandy's beaches. More than 350 books have touched on the day, or have concentrated on the day, but Ryan's is rigidly objective and that makes him an author in a D-Day class by himself. He second-guesses no generals, "ifs" no strategies, preaches no sermons. All he presents is individuals in a battle, how they fought, ran, died, and knew confusion. The title is from Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's remark to his aide, "Believe me, Lang, the first 24 hours of the invasion will be decisive... For the Allies as well as Germany, it will be the longest day."

In the years following June 6, 1944, D-Day tended to lose its identity. There was only one D-Day, in truth. In usage, D-Day became a term for the initial 24 hours of any assault. In observance, it became neglected. Ryan, the former British war correspondent, felt something stirring within himself in 1949 and poking around, was somewhat surprised to find what it was: Resentment at the neglect of D-Day and its heroes, the men in the first assault wave.

Explaining his resentment, or sentiment, or, most-abused but noble word, inspiration, for "The Longest Day" is not easy for Ryan. He becomes embarrassed. He looked at the Simon and Schuster man for help. The publisher's man smiled encouragingly but said nothing. His job was to see that Ryan got from one literary lion's den to another, didn't founder on tea and culture, and left St. Louis in one piece. Ryan took a deep breath and put himself at the mercy of all cynics:

"This is going to sound corny. I am a naturalized American citizen. I thought the Americans were owed something better. I thought the British, the Canadians, the Germans, the men on all sides, were owed something better than to be forgotten. I warn you, this sounds corny. It's cornball. It's also the way I feel."

"The only assurance of immortality on D-Day was to be dead: on the casualty lists. This greatest battle was the most unrecorded; privates and drummer boys at Waterloo were better remembered than the men who were in the first and second waves at Normandy. Neglected? Why, it took 10 days for the Army and Navy to decide which was responsible for taking the bodies out of the water."

Ryan was expressing all the emotion he did not place in his book. There is no Ryan except Ryan-the-reporter in his book. "The Longest Day" is what its foreword declares: "What follows is not a military history. It is the story of people: the men of the Allied forces, the enemy they fought and the civilians who were caught up in the bloody confusion of D-Day."

The book contains 337 pages and 483 people. They are not crowded or cramped for space or cut short in mid-personality, these 483 people in 337 pages. The book only covers one day in their lives and whether it was a last day or a bravest day or a day of panic, it is a painfully honest day.

"Every man read what was written about him, before publication," Ryan said, "because I had to keep faith with these men. When this book was bought for a movie I was asked to do the script. I refused because I want to be able to look these men in the eye, always, on every detail."

A Frenchman, Raoul Levy, sought the book for movie-making. When Levy approached Ryan, the author was on the defensive, not to mention the critical. He wasn't finished with the book, either.

"I want to go to the beaches and hire gardeners to chop down the overgrowth," Levy said. "I'll reconstruct the defenses from Rommel's own drawings."

"I hope you'll make the beaches wide enough for the chariots," Ryan said. His Irish sarcasm was not wasted, it caused a grand French explosion.

"I hope," said Levy, "you'll mention the 173 Frenchmen who made the first landing."

Ryan, the D-Day expert, thereby learned that there had been French soldiers in the Normandy landing. His book profited with the knowledge that the French commander repeated to himself the battle prayer of Sir Jacob Astley, "O Lord, Thou knowest how busy I must be this day. If I forget Thee, do not Thou forget me..." Sir Jacob said his prayer in 1642.

Levy-the-movie-maker's volunteered information was a free blessing. Very little else in the book was free information. Much of it cost money. All of it cost time. Ryan worked on the book 10 years, 1949-1959.

For six years he worked alone. He worked on it in his spare time when he was doing well as a writer on the late Collier's magazine. Then he worked on the book as an unemployed husband, while his wife Kathryn paid the bills. Mrs. Ryan is an associate editor for House and Home magazine.

"In '56," he said, "I didn't know what was going to happen to us. Collier's was out of business. I'd won Overseas Press Club awards, a Franklin award, I'd had five books published. But this project was too expensive. I had to have underwriting. I went to the magazines, to publishers. They were polite, as polite as they can expect people to be to a crazy man."

"My wife said, 'You stay on this. I'll pay the rent and the bills.'"

Ryan paused. He had released his hands from the table and was using them to give his speech Irish directions, waving the words one way and another. He rubbed his chin and said wryly, "Well, I accepted her belief. Anyway, I always wanted to stand at the door in my dressing gown and kiss my wife goodby as she went off to work for us."

Kathryn Ryan's belief gained company. The company wasn't much in numbers but it had what Ryan needed. Faith and money. His backers became Reader's Digest, Simon and Schuster and particularly Peter Schwedd of that company, and a British publisher, Victor Gollancz. This three-ply backing is unusual, but so is Ryan and so is his book.

He spent money. He advertised: "Where were you on June 6, 1944?" in 250 papers in Germany alone. The Germans were somewhat slow to respond. They couldn't remember much good happening on that day. Ryan came and went, from New York to Europe. He went to Alexandria and examined German war diaries.

He got 7000 initial responses.

"If you have read all the accounts of D Day or none of them, if you were in the fighting or on the sidelines, you will be spellbound, as I was, by this magnificent telling of a glorious and tragic story." Lt. Gen. James Gavin

He sent out simple questionnaires. The original 7000 quickly were reduced to 3000 possibly-authentic individual sources.

"People think of the first wave at Normandy as a hundred thousand, two hundred thousand troops," Ryan said. "There were perhaps 3500. So, of the 3000 responses we found 1000 we could use, by cross-checking, finding one man's statements of where he was corroborated by another man's. Of the 1000, I interviewed 700. And used 483 in the book."

Ryan had become tense, leaning forward, as he spoke of the 10-year research. He relaxed and leaned back. He looked at the forgotten coffee cup. He spoke to it, as if apologizing for a long oversight in courtesy:

"I've become emotionally involved with all these people," he said. "I've received 2000 letters from D-Day men in four months. I've managed to answer half of them so far. I get 30 to 40 phone calls a day. I've become a cross between a post office, a confessional and a D-Day Answer-Man."

"Best of all—," and he looked away from the coffee cup because it wouldn't understand, "I like what my wife said: 'Ryan, you've given the best years of your life to 'The Longest Day.'"

A Vote for Today's College Students

Dear Mr. S.—

THANK YOU for your nice letter and for thinking enough of my opinion to ask my views for your discussion of "What are the moral standards of college students?" You say that the consensus of the many magazine articles you have read in your research is that, "All teen-agers and most college students are rotten," and you want to know if I agree.

CLARISSA START

Like many experts, I speak with limited knowledge of the subject. I do not know any college students intimately and my opinion is based on what I hear from parents, teachers and friends, and what I see of high school students and young working people.

It seems to me, however, that there has been very little change in the moral standards and behavior of young people (or older ones) in the past generation and what change there has been is for the better. There always have been young people of high standards who are reliable, scrupulously honest, trustworthy, who have ideals and try to live up to them. There always have been young people who cheat in their work and their relationships with others, who try to get by doing as little and taking as much as possible.

I can still remember one of my first jobs, a part-time typing job during the depression and my supervisor's disgust that some of the college students worked at top speed while others—"boondoggled," we called them then—dawdled their time away.

Today when we see lazy, slipshod workers among the young, we blame it on comfortable living conditions and the ease of employment. But we had them in the starving 1930s too.

By "moral standards of college students," I assume you mean not only honesty and integrity but sexual behavior in the human male and female. As far as I can see, this presents the same problems and conflicts as it did in mother's day, grandmother's, and the day of Adam and Eve. At some periods in history, if we can judge by historical novels, promiscuity and indiscretion are sanctioned, at other times frowned upon. Today with the larger incidence of early marriage, I would hazard a guess that there are fewer premarital affairs of long duration.

Again from the unreliable vantage point of another generation, it seems to me that wild behavior is less a "must" than it was at periods I can remember. In addition to this, there seems an earlier awareness of the serious problems of humanity and the world among young people today. Recently on Channel Nine's Metropolis series, we watched a group of high school students discuss their futures and such present issues as integration. They were sheltered young people, a little naive, but I was impressed by their awareness and the sincerity of their concern.

There are some who say that mankind, from infancy to old age, is no better today than in the barbarous cave man era or the Middle Ages. There are others who feel that little by little the world is getting better and so are the people in it. If this generation is only slightly more tolerant, more conscious of the ills and injustices of the world, more responsible for its fellow man, it's a step forward. In my observation, today's college student is a giant step ahead of those of my memory.

Count me among the optimists.

Causes of Cysts

"Dear Dr. Molner:

WHAT CAUSES CYSTS, and can they become cancerous? MRS. T.S.

A cyst is a cavity containing fluid without an opening from which it could otherwise escape. There are many kinds of cysts, depending on location and origin.

Let's start with the common sebaceous cyst—a cyst which forms around one of the many tiny glands in the skin.

One way or another, a small area around the gland becomes an enclosure, perhaps by some plugging of the duct through which the gland normally would expel oil. The gland keeps on secreting—but the oil has no place to go, and piles up in the cyst.

Common sites for such cysts are on the face, behind the ear and in the scalp. They range in size from tiny white-headed spots to rather large lumps.

Other cysts may occur in the eyelids; still others may occur in various organs of the body, either internal or on the surface. The causes vary. Take, for example, the pilonidal cyst in the lower back, which is familiar to most physicians. It may come from some defect in the formation of the back or, a more recent theory, from an ingrown hair.

Internally, a cyst might develop in the pancreas, and as it grows, there would be abdominal symptoms from its size, since there is no handy space into which it can expand. The liver is another organ that may acquire a cyst.

However, a much more common cyst is one on the ovary, called the ovarian cyst.

Here, again it is an area where there is glandular tissue. Such cysts ordinarily can vary from the size of a peach pit to the size of a person's head.

Whether cysts are to be removed depends on the symptoms they cause. Some expand very slowly and cause no trouble. Some (as cysts on the skin) are removed for the sake of appearance.

Some, depending on the location, are not removed unless because of sheer size, and perhaps thus pressure, they become a nuisance. Internal cysts in some areas may become cancerous and hence are removed for the sake of safety. Others may safely be ignored for many years.

You may ask why it isn't possible to use a needle or otherwise withdraw the fluid or let it drain out of a cyst. It can be done, but the cyst fills again. The whole cyst, outer capsule and all, must be removed. Incomplete removal (or a cyst that breaks through to the skin surface and drains) usually causes infection.

So, if a cyst causes pain or other trouble, it should be removed completely. Then you are done with it.

"Dear Dr. Molner: "IS THERE ANY DANGER in having moles removed from one's face by electrolysis? Will it leave scars? J.A.B."

No, it is not dangerous. Yes, it will probably leave a small scar, the scar depending on the size of the mole. The scar will be far less noticeable than the mole, of course.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail but, due to the volume received, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

THE NEXT DAY was rainy and dark. Rain fell on the roof of the barn and dripped steadily from the eaves.

Rain upset Wilbur's plans. Wilbur had planned to go out, this day, and dig a new hole in his yard. He had other plans, too. His plans for the day went something like this:

Breakfast at 6:30. Skim milk, crusts, middlings, bits of doughnuts, wheat cakes with drops of maple sirup sticking to them, potato skins, leftover custard pudding with raisins, and bits of Shredded Wheat.

From 7 to 8, Wilbur planned to have a talk with Templeton, the rat that lived under his trough. From 8 to 9, Wilbur planned to take a nap out in the sun. From 9 to 11, he planned to dig a hole, or trench, and possibly find something good to eat buried in the dirt. From 11 to 12, he planned to stand still and watch flies on the boards, watch bees in the clover, and watch swallows in the air.

Noon—lunchtime. Middlings, warm water, apple parings, meat scraps, stale hominy, and the wrapper off a package of cheese. From 1 to 2, Wilbur planned to sleep. From 2 to 3, he planned to scratch itchy places by rubbing against the fence. From 3 to 4, he planned to stand perfectly still and think of what it was like to be alive, and to wait for Fern.

At 4 would come supper. Skim milk, provender, leftover sandwich from Lurvy's lunchbox, prune skins, a morsel of this, a bit of that, fried potatoes, marmalade drippings, a little more of this, a little more of that, a piece of baked apple, a scrap of upsidown cake.

Wilbur had gone to sleep thinking about these plans. He awoke play with pigs."

Sadly, Wilbur lay down and listened to the rain. Soon he saw the rat climbing down a slanting board that he used as a stairway.

"Will you play with me, Templeton?" asked Wilbur.

"Play?" said Templeton, twirling his whiskers. "Play? I hardly know the meaning of the word."

"Well," said Wilbur, "it means to have fun, to frolic, to run and skip and make merry."

"I never do those things if I can avoid them," replied the rat, sourly. "I prefer to spend my time eating, gnawing, spying, and hiding. I am a glutton but not a merry-maker. Right now I am on my way to your trough to eat your breakfast, since you haven't got sense enough to eat it yourself." And Templeton, the rat, crept along the wall and disappeared into a private tunnel that he had dug between the door and the trough in Wilbur's at 6 and saw the rain. For a while he stood gloomily indoors. Then he walked to the door and looked out. His trough had an inch of rainwater in it. Templeton was nowhere to be seen.

"Are you out there, Templeton?" called Wilbur. There was no answer. Suddenly Wilbur felt lonely and friendless.

"One day just like another," he groaned. "I'm very young, I have no real friend here in the barn, it's going to rain all morning and all afternoon, and Fern won't come in such bad weather. Oh, honestly!" And Wilbur was crying again, for the second time in two days.

At 6:30 Wilbur heard the banging of a pail. Lurvy was standing outside in the rain, stirring up breakfast.

"C'mon, pig!" said Lurvy. Wilbur did not budge. Lurvy dumped the slops, scraped the pail, and walked away. He noticed that something was wrong with the pig.

Wilbur didn't want food, he wanted love. He wanted a friend—someone who would play with him. He mentioned this to the goose, who was sitting quietly in a corner of the sheepfold.

"Sorry, sonny, sorry," said the goose. "I'm sitting-sitting on my eggs. Eight of them. Got to keep them toasty-oasty-warm. I'm expecting goslings."

Wilbur next tried one of the lambs. "Will you please play with me?" he asked.

"Certainly not," said the lamb. "In the first place, I cannot get into your pen, as I am not old enough to jump over the fence. In the second place, I am not interested in pigs. Pigs mean less than nothing to me."

"What do you mean, less than nothing?" replied Wilbur. "I don't think there is any such thing as less than nothing."

"Oh, be quiet!" said the lamb. "Go play by yourself! I don't you?" screamed Wilbur. "Please, please, tell me where you are. And what are salutations?"

"Salutations are greetings," said the voice. "When I say 'salutations,' it's just my fancy way of saying hello or good morning. As for my whereabouts, that's easy. Look up here in the corner of the doorway! Here I am. Look, I'm waving!"

At last Wilbur saw the creature that had spoken to him in such a kindly way. Stretched across the upper part of the doorway was a big spiderweb, and hanging from the top of the web, head down, was a large gray spider. She had eight legs, and she was waving one of them at Wilbur in friendly greeting. "See me now?" she asked.

"Oh, yes indeed," said Wilbur. "Yes indeed! How are you? Good morning! Salutations! Very pleased to meet you. What is your name, please?"

"My name," said spider, "is Charlotte."

"Charlotte what?" asked Wilbur, eagerly.

"Charlotte A. Cavatica. But just call me Charlotte."

"I think you're beautiful," said Wilbur.

"Well, I am pretty," replied Charlotte. "There's no denying that. Almost all spiders are rather nice-looking. I'm not as flashy as some, but I'll do. I wish I could see you, Wilbur, as clearly as you can see me."

"Why can't you?" asked the pig. "I'm right here."

"Yes, but I'm near-sighted," replied Charlotte. "I've always been dreadfully near-sighted. It's good in some ways, not so good in others. Watch me wrap up this fly."

A fly that had been crawling along Wilbur's trough had flown up and blundered into the lower part of Charlotte's web and was tangled in the sticky threads. The fly was beating its wings furiously, trying to break loose and free itself.

"First," said Charlotte, "I dive at him." She plunged head-first toward the fly. As she dropped, a tiny silken thread unwound from her rear end.

"Next, I wrap him up," she grabbed the fly, threw a few jets of silk around it, and rolled it over and over, wrapping it so that it couldn't move.

"There!" said Charlotte. "Now I knock him out, so he'll be more comfortable." She bit the fly. "He can't feel a thing now," she remarked. "He'll make a perfect breakfast for me."

"You mean you eat flies?" gasped Wilbur.

"Certainly. Flies, bugs, grasshoppers, beetles, moths, butterflies, gnats, mosquitoes, crickets—anything that is careless enough to get caught in my web."

"Do they taste good?"

"Delicious. I don't really eat them. I drink them—drink their blood. I love blood," said Charlotte.

"Don't say that!" groaned Wilbur.

"Why not? It's true, and I have to say what is true. I am not entirely happy about my diet of flies and bugs, but it's the way I'm made. A spider has to pick up a living somehow or other, and I happen to be a trapper. I just naturally build a web and trap flies and other insects."

Wilbur was sad because his new friend was so bloodthirsty.

"I can't help it," Charlotte said. "I don't know how the first spider in the early days of the world happened to think up this fancy idea of spinning a web, but she did, and it was clever of her, too. And since then, all of us spiders have had to work the same trick. It's not a bad pitch, on the whole."

"It's cruel," replied Wilbur.

"Well, you can't talk," said Charlotte. "You have your meals brought to you in a pail. Nobody feeds me. And furthermore," said Charlotte, shaking one of her legs, "do you realize that if I didn't catch bugs and eat them, bugs would increase and multiply and get so numerous that they'd destroy the earth, wipe out everything?"

"Really?" said Wilbur. "I wouldn't want that to happen. Perhaps your web is a good thing after all."

South got to seven hearts largely on his own steam. He had no right to expect more strength from North than dummy showed up with. But, having gotten there, he managed the affair very well.

Only 11 sure tricks were in sight. A twelfth trick depended upon a club finesse, though it did seem likely that West, who had bid, would have the queen and the finesse would work. At any rate, the success of the finesse had to be assumed.

The thirteenth trick was the difficult one. It was not in plain sight. But since South presumably had all the tricks except one—a condition expected to alert declarer to the possibility of a successful squeeze—South proceeded to play for that possibility.

He trumped the diamond lead and drew three rounds of hearts, discarding a spade from dummy.

Then he played the ace and another club, finessing the jack. Next he cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond.

He could not afford to part with the diamond, so he discarded the jack of spades. West could only hope his partner had the ten.

14th Floor, Paul Brown Bldg.

ARE YOU A "SQUARE"?

Well, no one really is—except when they try to fit into the "ROUND HOLE" of a job! It may not be you that's "square"—maybe the job makes you seem like that...

Everyone doesn't fit into the same kind of work. For instance—extroverts should do jobs requiring extroversion traits—introverts should do jobs requiring introversion traits—and there's a world in between. But it can be serious if extroverts and introverts are placed in wrong-outlet jobs.

Jobs for extroverts are listed by Dr. Raymond B. Cattell, Research Professor in Psychology, University of Illinois as "salesman, sales clerk, sales engineer, the supervisor classifications, contact clerk (receptionist) and instructor."

"Introverts," Dr. Cattell maintains, "are better risks for most technical, engineering, scientific, clerical and factory jobs."

"Ambiverts can adapt themselves to combination jobs—so long as there is not a heavy amount of work at either extreme."

The calamity comes, I realize, when you don't know the difference about yourself. That's where our type of counseling and placement service can help solve the problem.

Be happy in your job—it's one of the basic essentials of life... Talk with you again next Tuesday right here?

Martha Carr's

Too Soon to Date?

Dear Martha:
MY HUSBAND died two months ago. I am 30 and have two children. Last week I went out on a date.

My mother thinks this is all right, but my husband's mother and sister think I am terrible.

I think I stayed in mourning long enough. What is your opinion? I want to do the right thing.

A WIDOW.
Since your mother-in-law feels as she does—and remember, her own loss is far greater than that of your mother—you would be considered not to go out on dates for another few months. You can accept invitations to small dinner parties or family gatherings. After all, it is wise to get back into a normal life as soon as possible. But to seem to take a personal interest in another man only two months later after your husband's death would appear a little callous, I'm afraid. Six months is considered the shortest period of time to wait before resuming a busy social life.

Dear Martha:
WHAT CAN YOU DO about a stay-at-home husband? He is fine in every way, but he never wants to go anywhere. He doesn't care if I go. He's glad to stay home with the children while I play bridge or go to a club meeting. But I do wish he would come with me sometimes to a party or we could go out to dinner or to a dance. Is there any chance of reforming him?

LONESOME.
Surely, with all his other good qualities, you can forgive him this one lack. Don't nag at him to go out. Enjoy your own social life—concentrating as much of it as possible in the daytime—and be grateful that he'd rather stay home than run around. Many of those who do go out forget one thing—the wife. She stays at home alone and wishes he were there. There are worse things than nice, pleasant, anti-social husbands.

Dear Martha:
A GROUP OF US who live in the county want to get together for parties and dancing at some place where we can meet new friends, including boys. We enjoy picnics, sports, weekend trips and other activities like that. Any place for us?

LOOKING AROUND.
The County Branch of the Y.W.C.A. has started a club for girls out of high school and under 25. There will be bowling, parties, dances, discussion groups and other activities. Call Parkview 5-7203 for information.

Write today for Martha Carr's list of baby names, which includes several hundred for both boys and girls. Be sure to include a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK, April 12.
IT IS A GOOD THING that the Senate has finally passed the civil rights bill after an eight-week fight, with 42 Democrats and 29 Republicans in favor. This is only the second civil rights legislation to pass the Senate since the reconstruction era. The first civil rights act of 1875 was also a voting rights measure. Already those who want a really fair bill giving the Negroes their full rights are denouncing this bill, and I am quite sure that it will continue to be denounced. But I hope that it is at least step in the right direction.

All of us in the Democratic party, I think, owe Senator Johnson a vote of thanks. He has risked repercussions among his Southern colleagues and among his own constituents. He has made it possible for the Democrats to claim equal, if not more, responsibility for the passage of the bill which, of course, should never have had to be passed—for the right to vote should be something which every citizen of this country enjoys without any question. Since it was necessary to pass the bill, however, we are fortunate to have had a parliamentary leader with the skill of Senator Johnson.

My one fear is of intimidation which I feel sure will be tried to prevent Negro citizens in the South from registering and voting. I hope the attorney general can find ways of protecting the registration and of preventing retaliation when the Negro citizens of the South exercise their constitutional right.

New Products on Market

GROWS WITH THE FAMILY: Newest idea in hot water supply for the home is a highly flexible gas-fired water heater that performs as a 30, 40, or even 50-gallon heater, depending on how you set the dial. The heater was developed to solve the problem of temporarily inadequate hot water supply on various occasions such as when there are extra guests. And also to meet changing needs of families requiring more hot water as babies arrive, then less as children grow up, go away to college, marry and leave home. The heater uses a new type of burner that can operate on more than one specific volume of gas. And it produces more gallons of hot water, NOT just hotter water, when you set dial higher.

FOR YOUR KITCHEN: One of two new frying pans is an imported skillet with a permanent, baked-on silicone lining. Not only does the lining eliminate sticking problems and let you wipe the pan clean after cooking; it's said to let you fry and pan-broil with almost no fats.

ALSO NEW: An electric frying pan with a special lever that elevates it to the right cooking angle and also is said to offer the advantage of pan-broiling without fat. The lever lifts the pan to automatically drain excess fat from bacon and other foods, make basting eggs easy.

Doomsday TV's New Interest

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, April 12.
"MY NAME is Mark Bragg. I'm dead. Ninety-two per cent of the world's population is dead. I was one of the first. I was lucky." You sure were, chum. Because then you missed all the drama and books on the subject of our extermination. I just finished "Level 7," a novel about life in the atomic catacombs where a push-button war is conducted. Everyone got wiped out, including the button-pushers. Before that I read Nevil Shute's "On the Beach." Same thing. To the last man.

Now comes "Alas, Babylon" by Pat Frank, which was dramatized for Playhouse 90 by David Shaw. The above grim quote opened the show. Getting very popular among writers to exterminate the human race. It's a fact. It'll pass and the writers will go on to other enthusiasms. Proletarian novels about the life in the next world. Cute stories about life in the ruins where boy meets girl and they have happy problems.

But that comes later. Now we are in the extermination phase. And, it's grim, brother, grim. My favorite line in this is when the heroine comes back from the window and says: "My God, they got Orlando!" I can remember way back — it wasn't that long ago — when the line read: "My God, they got George!" Now they get whole cities.

As extermination fiction goes, "Alas, Babylon" is a rip-roarer. The narrative moved like lightning from uneasy peace to total disaster with a sure-footed mounting excitement that had me breathless. The transitions — either the work of adapter Shaw or of the director, Robert Stevens — were particularly dramatic. In one of them, for example, the action shifted suddenly, explosively from a character quoting the "Alas, Babylon" passage from the Bible to jet bombers streaking through the sky. In another from the drunken hero at a supermarket to the quiet orderliness of the underground "push button" headquarters, the ultimate expression of "man's genius or his folly."

PAT FRANK is very good at apocalyptic fiction (and it's getting to be a genre like the ascan school). In the beginning his hero has lost his wife. He drinks and chases girls. In the end, he doesn't drink so much and he wants to be a good husband. (Ninety-two per cent of the world population has died in order to teach him to stay home nights. You think, Mannie, it's maybe dramatically convex?)

The narrator is a dead man and this device is piquant, to say the least. Lines like: "These were the last words I ever heard." (Swiftly followed by a black screen and a commercial.) Mr. Frank is not at all sentimental about life in a ruined society. His townspeople—hanging sullenly about the empty supermarket exchanging vicious rumors—act like spoiled apes. They're selfish and empty and, in some cases, vicious.

Kim Hunter played the part of a hysterical mother and the worst thing I can say is that she does it well. The role of women in end-of-the-world fiction is becoming as well-trod and clearly marked as the U.S. 66, but it's not a pleasant path at all, girls, and you might as well face it. The women in these things are incessantly wringing their hands and whining about the old days before Orlando disappeared. Women are essentially life-creating types and end-of-the-world drama doesn't sit well on them.

I'VE READ quite a lot of this sort of fiction, starting clear back with H. G. Wells, whose end-of-the-world romps sound quaint and Victorian in the light of these rude fellows today, and one thread seems to run consistently through all of the books. It's always an accident. The country that starts the rocket firing always thinks someone else started it first. Irony lies heavy as lead all over these scripts. "Alas, Babylon" had no proper ending: it just sort of petered out into platitudes about enjoying every minute of what little life is left them. The note of irony was sounded in the final words: "Who won the war? We did. We clobbered 'em."

It was an excellent production by Peter Kertner and it had a splendid cast, including Dana Andrews, Don Murray, Barbara Rush, Everett Sloane and Rita Moreno.

Teen-Age Fashions

The fashion future for teen-age girls is saucy, shapely and not at all sophisticated. One magazine sums it up this way: "Gingham checks get the biggest credit as the most important fabric. In pastel and white shaped into bare-armed, snug-bodied bouffant, gingham takes on unexpectedly dressed-up airs. Hemline interest is in the form of white tating, a ruffle or a frothy, show-off petticoat."

look who's watching your weight

ABOUT 46 CALORIES PER SLICE. Everyone watches your weight. Do you?

Hollywood bread helps weight-watchers for there's just about 46 calories in a 18 gram slice.

Also in each slice are vitamins and minerals from 16 sun-ripened vegetables and grains.

Isn't it wonderful that something which tastes so good can be so good for the whole family?

BAKED BY FREUND BAKING CO.

TV Notes and Gossip

ASSOCIATED PRESS TV writer Cynthia Lowry says this summer threatens to be the dullist in the medium's bright history. At least two out of three night-time programs will be re-runs.

PAT BOONE'S ABC-TV program Thursday, taped in Paris, will be called "C'est Si Boone." Among his guests will be 18-year-old singer Jacqueline Boyer, daughter of the famed Lucienne Boyer.

AMONG ABC-TV SHOWS renewed for next season are Robert Taylor's detective series and Nick Adams' "The Rebel."

GIAN-CARLO MENOTTI, composer of the television Christmas classic, "Amahl and the Night Visitors," is working on a new Easter opera expected to be ready for Easter next year.

BRITISH ACTOR Trevor Howard, who appears from time to time in TV specials on American television, says TV is much more stimulating here than it is in Britain. "I seldom do television at home," he says. "The medium is much more exciting here—the scripts are better, the techniques more advanced, the whole atmosphere is much more interesting."

RECOMMENDED TO-NIGHT: Red Skelton show, KMOX-TV, 8:30-9—With Audrey Meadows in a topical sketch about census takers; Garry Moore show, KMOX-TV, 9-10—Patrice Munsel and comedian Alan King join the Moore show regulars.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

WHEN I was a small boy, I was shown a small, hairy object, and was told that it was a caterpillar. The statement was true, but these words might have been added:

"In addition to the hairy caterpillars, there are many with smooth skins."

To this day I find it hard to think of a caterpillar as having anything but a fuzzy covering. It is true, however, that the smooth larva of the monarch butterfly is as truly a caterpillar as the "woolly bear," an early stage of the tiger moth.

The Caterpillar

they have several pairs of claspers, along with three pairs of true legs. Sometimes only two pairs of claspers exist, in other cases four or five pairs.

More than half a million kinds of insects are known to exist. If we ever build up a "complete list," the number may go above a million.

The life histories of insects differ widely. In many cases (but not all) there are three stages: the larva, the pupa and the adult.
